SUZUKI CAUSES DEADLOCK IN JAPANESE CABINET FORMATION

REFUSES THE TWO PORTFOLIOS

Denying that he had been expelled from Germany, Thomas Mann, German author and winner of the 1929 Nobel Prize for literature, arrives in New York for a brief tour of America. He has been living in Switzerland since the Nazi party achieved power in Germany.

NEW PLAN TO SUPPLANT N.R.A. POWERS

SELF-GOVERNMENT INDUSTRY.

GEN. JOHNSON'S SCHEME

New York, Yesterday. The Associated Copyright Administration is authoritatively reported to be planning to supplant the N.R.A. by a strictly regulated system of self-government for industry.

The Codes would be closely supervised by the Federal Government, and would be a permanent feature of industrial life.

The proposals, initiated by the National Recovery Administrator, General Hugh Johnson, were sent to President Roosevelt, who returned them to General Johnson for revision.

General Johnson is reported to be paying particular attention to the monopolistic charges against the N.R.A. with a view to the prevention of an unjustified rise in prices.

A licensing system would replace the Sherman Anti-Trust Act which is under suspension.

LEANDER BEAT PRINCETON

2 RECORDS BROKEN

London, Yesterday. Perfect weather conditions favoured the final day of Henley Regatta to-day, and as a result two records were shattered and another equalled.

Buhtz, famous German oarsman, accomplished what was expected of him when he beat Rutherford of Princeton University, America, by 3 1/2 lengths to win the Diamond Sculls in 8 mins. 10 secs. to equal the 20-year-old record.

In the race for the Silver Goblets, Germany, represented by Braun and Muller, beat the Bigland brothers, of the Royal Chester Rowing Club, by 1 1/4 lengths in 8 mins. 9 secs., which is one second over the record.

Jesus Chilloe, Cambridge, beat Trinity College, Dublin, by three feet to win the Ladies' Plate in 6 mins. 48 secs. to better the 1921 record of Pembroke College, Cambridge, by seven seconds.

FIRST RESISTANCE TO ADMIRAL OKADA

BUREAUCRATIC "NATIONAL" CABINET LATER FORMED

CEREMONY TO-DAY

TOKYO, YESTERDAY.

THE FORMATION OF THE JAPANESE CABINET IS DEADLOCKED OWING TO THE REFUSAL OF THE SEIYUKAI PARTY LEADER, MR. SUZUKI, TO ACCEPT THE PORTFOLIOS OF MINISTER OF COMMUNICATIONS AND MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE OFFERED TO MR. T. TOKANAMI, AND MR. K. MOCHIZUKI, RESPECTIVELY, BY THE PREMIER, ADMIRAL OKADA, ON THE GROUNDS THAT THE POSTS ARE UNIMPORTANT.

Between 50 and 80 Seiyukai Party members, however, are threatening to secede and give support to Admiral Okada on condition that the three leading seceders are given portfolios.

Okada has been kept very busy from 5.30 o'clock this morning interviewing the ex-Premier, Viscount Saito, Mr. Suzuki, Baron Wakatsuki, leader of the Minseitō Party, and other politicians.

Latest reports indicate that Mr. Suzuki will climb down and that five portfolios will be allotted to the Seiyukai and Minseitō Parties. — Reuter.

SIX DEAD IN RIOT

ALL QUIET IN AMSTERDAM

ORDER RESTORED.

Amsterdam, Yesterday. After a night of fierce rioting in which two people were killed and many injured, quietness returned to the city early this morning.

The total casualties so far known are six killed and 50 injured. — Reuter.

The disturbances, which broke out on Thursday, are being staged by Communists who are demonstrating against a reduction in unemployment pay.

Barriades were erected in the street and shops were looted. The demonstrators massed in the Jordan district, but the rioting later spread to four more working class districts after the Military Police had cleaned out the Jordan district. The police were forced to fire on the mob.

ANGLO-FRENCH ALLIANCE

Labour Interpretations Of Parleys.

MR. BALDWIN'S DENIAL

London, Yesterday. Suspicions were yesterday voiced by the Opposition, in the House of Commons, that the recent exchange of visits of British and French Ministers to Paris and London were intended to examine alternative methods of mutual security and a possible military alliance.

Mr. Stanley Baldwin replied that the visits were innocuous without political implications, and that Great Britain had not made and did not contemplate any arrangement with France without consultation with the League of Nations. — Reuter.

Tokyo, Later.

Additional members of the Japanese Cabinet announced to-day, are:

Minister for Home Affairs, Mr. Fumio Goto.

Minister for Education, Mr. Genji Matsuda (Minseitō Party).

Minister of Commerce, Mr. Chuji Machida (Minseitō Party).

Minister of Agriculture, Mr. Tatsunosuke Yamashiki (Seiyukai Party).

Minister of Railways, Mr. Shinya Uchida (Seiyukai Party).

While the Cabinet is termed "National," it actually is strongly bureaucratic. The Premier has refused to allow a partyman to hold the Home Affairs portfolio, as he foresees a general election at the end of the year, and the Home Affairs Minister can vitally affect the elections through Prefectural Governors.

The Premier also holds the Overseas Affairs portfolio.

The Minister of the Communications post has been accepted by Mr. Takejiro Tokanami, the insurgent member of the Seiyukai Party.

The installation ceremony will take place at the Palace to-morrow morning.

Colonial Ministry Abolishment?

EASTERN PROVINCES ANXIOUS REGARDING RUMOUR

Dairen, Yesterday.

The three eastern provinces are breathlessly watching developments in connection with the rumour that the new Japanese Premier, Admiral Okada, intends to abolish the Colonial Ministry.

The Kwantung Government, the South Manchurian Railway officials, and business-men are excited, for abolition would prepare for army domination over them. — Reuter.

LEYLAND AND AMES IN THREE FIGURE STAND

ALLEN AND VERITY ADD 95.

HENDREN'S GREAT CATCH

A Test record was established yesterday at Manchester when England totalled 627 for 9 declared, the highest aggregate against Australia on English soil. Australia, however, scored 136 for the loss of Ponsford before the close of play.

The features of the day's play were Leyland's second successive Test century in a sixth wicket stand of 142 with Ames, the ninth wicket stand of 95 by Allen and Verity, Hendren's brilliant one-handed catch in the slips to dismiss Ponsford, and Brown's plucky innings when suffering from the mysterious sore throat malady.

30,000 SEE START

Manchester, Yesterday. Though it was swelteringly hot—82 degrees in the shade—30,000 were present when Maurice Leyland (83) and Leslie Ames (4), heroes of the second Test, resumed England's innings at 355 for 5 on a perfect wicket.

Barnett, the reserve wicket-keeper, and Bromley, who was dropped from the team after his failure at Lord's, came out with the Australian team in place of Bradman and Chipperfield, who are suffering from a mysterious malady that has stricken six of the tourists.

BIG PARTNERSHIP

The English batsmen, who had added 15 runs for the sixth wicket overnight, dug themselves in, treating both O'Reilly and Grimmett with the utmost respect.

LEG-THEORY RETORT

Scathing Remark By Carr

"LANCASHIRE AFRAID"

London, Yesterday. "Lancashire are afraid of fast bowling, and forged Macdonald" declared Arthur Carr, the former England captain and present Notts skipper to-day.

He added that there was never any attempt at leg theory bowling during the recent Notts and Lancashire match at Trent Bridge, and, although a few of the Lancashire batsmen were struck on the legs, that was only to be expected when a fast bowler was making the ball come back. — Reuter.

SHORT STORY.

BANDIT

By CLIVE BURNLEY.

"DRINK," said Scab, turning to the saloon door.

O'Regan hesitated. "What about the Boy?" he asked.

The Boy scowled with offended pride.

"God!" he said, "it'll not fuz-ze me," and led the way inside, swaggering a little.

The bar was dim, almost empty,

emelling of beer and stale smoke.

"Shorts," said Scab, and ordered for them all, doubles for the Irishman and himself, a tot for the Boy.

The Boy did not protest. It was enough merely to be drinking. The Boy had reached his majority, yet had a smallness of feature that made him look younger. He was long limbed, thin wristed, bare of too much flesh.

He lifted the small glass in his hand and twirled it, so that the whisky splashed around its sides and hung there; and he stood, one hand on his hip, looking at the barmaid, at the commercial in the corner, at the obvious tradesman, paunched with prosperity, who was the only other customer, and the Boy thought... if they only knew!

... If they only knew his business, and Scab's, and O'Regan's!

If they could only see the headlines of the evening's paper!

If...

It was the Boy's first job.

The empty glasses were brought amantly down on to the stained wood of the bar, and Scab turned immediately and swung the door open for the others. Sunlight streamed past him, clear sunlight of spring choked with the dust of the city.

They found the car where Scab had said it would be. It was parked by the side of the common, a black indistinguishable saloon, with a pattern of dried mud hanging dustily on its wings.

They boarded it quickly, without speaking.

The Boy's face was tense—jaw firm, flesh over cheeks tightly strained, eyes set. O'Regan took the wheel. He took it nonchalantly, but with a sort of efficient command in that carelessness. A cigar stub burned between his lips and sent pungent

smoke into the Boy's eyes.

Scab sat in the back seat. He was imperturbable. His jaw was always savage, his small blue eyes always steady and malicious.

O'Regan drove away, gently.

The Boy felt his pulse quicken.

It had begun. There was no going back. The trees of the common passed, passed slowly. More rapidly the rowed houses slid by the window, and then the gay shops, and later the streets where the tram-bells rang.

No one spoke.

The Boy stared, hardly noticing at first what he saw, into the streets.

They were crowded. There was a lot of women on the pavements,

leading children, carrying baskets,

shopping. Old matronly women, and young and desirable ones.

And there were men, the men of a London crowd, men of empire, country, town, uniforms, the self-conscious smartness of the clerk,

the oiled hair of the shop-walker,

the baldness of the merchant,

laughs, questions, answers...

people milling in a ceaseless movement, consistently active.

The Boy suddenly realised that they were all enemies—all, from district messenger to armed policeman. He had known many such streets and crowds as this,

played in them as a child, wandered in them as a youth and met,

as a man, his women there. But to-day this had become as no other street had been, and the people as no other people, ominous in their number and dangerous in their activity...

He gazed, to relieve his mind, at the traffic, and fixed his eyes on a team of horses dragging with nodding heads a laden dray, and on the clanging gilt buckles of their harness.

There came the sudden open embrace of a river bridge, where the traffic echoes died off suddenly.

The Boy had been afraid of fear... Now he was afraid of something else... He felt as if there were a taut fibre stretched from the crown of his skull to his feet,

through his body, and that it was growing tauter, and that it would snap, and that the very soul of him would collapse inside him...

FASHION IDEAS FROM THE EAST

Old Oriental Pictures Aid Modern Design.

Paris. The two outstanding silhouettes evolving from spring styles shown at the openings make a striking contrast. You can look like a picture from the Far East or like an eighteenth century figure come to life.

The first one creates a distinctly Oriental impression and often is completed by Chinese coolie hats. One house showed Chinese lantern sleeves on coolie coats.

Molyneux stresses the Japanese silhouette which is enhanced by novelty floral prints in Oriental colorings. Such costumes are topped by shallow cartwheel and square-brimmed hats.

The other silhouette delves deep into the past for its inspiration. (Continued at Foot of Next Col.)

London Fashion Notes

Full Sleeves With Back Movement.

SLEEVES continue to be full at the top, with the movement backwards. One blouse just launched by a Paris designer has sleeves shaped like a peg-top. Another, named "Fuchsia," is of purple sand crepe with sleeves shaped like that flower.

Stripes and spots predominate in new spring blouses with large gay bows tied conquittishly under the chin. The vogue for blouses has created a fashion for waisted skirts, and, for the first time since the early nineteen-twenties, these are being made on a large scale independent of matching coats.

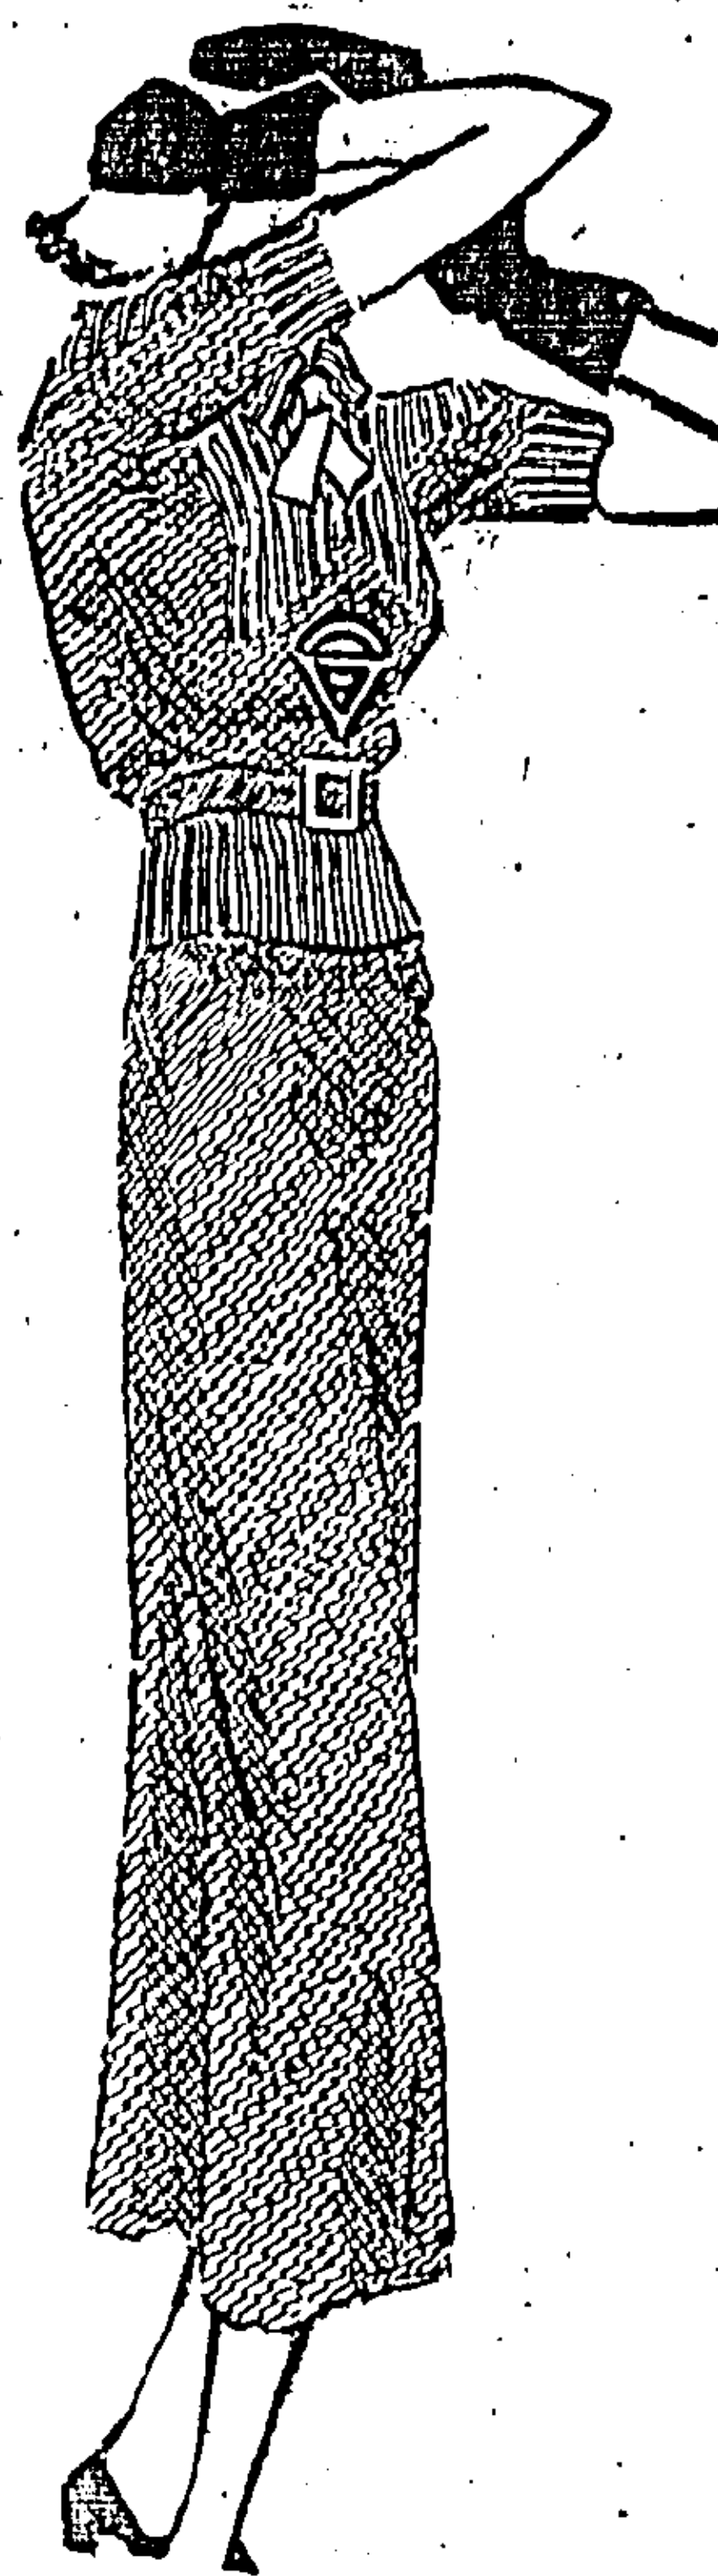

All the newest models, both for day and evening wear, are so shaped that the hem sweeps out gently like the cup of a flower. To achieve this line the skirt is cut with bell shaped gores. These give a narrow line at the knees; gradually flowing out and widening towards the ankle. Frocks lengthen or shorten according to the hour of the day and the type of frock.

To Clean Soiled Photographs.

LONDON. MANY people use stands instead of frames for their photographs, with the result that the photographs become soiled through lack of glass protection from dust and finger-marks.

Photographs which have been soiled in this way should be treated with methylated spirit. Apply the methylated spirit only sparingly by sponging with slightly moistened cotton wool.

The spirit is excellent for removing any dirty marks, particularly those caused by greasy fingers. The methylated spirit may be used without any fear of damage being done to the photographs.

COUTOURIES AND 1934 FASHIONS

Pre-War Ideas In Styles Revived With Success.

COUTOURIERS have gone back to pre-war days, taken an idea here and there, and sewed them right into fashions for 1934. For instance, hobble skirts and cart-wheel mash-room, hats are revived for both day and evening wear. Feathered capes and hats contribute to the pre-war fluffiness trend. Shaded ostrich plumes trim immense sleeves on some evening coats.

The importance of fabrics and colours are stressed throughout the collections. Severe tailored things are enlivened by colour contrasts. Luminous silks and satins make the shining sheath frocks which prevail for evening.

Loosely woven tweeds and printed chifons that are metal-threaded are striking fabric notations. Finally, ruched tulle and tulle for evening wraps and nursery printed lines for beach wear are shown.

New evening gowns retain a natural purity of line in front and practically all interest is centered at the back by means of puffs, pleats and butterfly wings.

BATH TO WHITEN SHOULDERS

LONDON. A BATH to whiten the shoulders and the back can be prepared by adding one dessertspoonful of lemon juice to one pint of milk and then adding ten grains of powdered borax.

After the parts have been well bathed with the solution they must be bathed with plain milk and then dried.

FOR NICE HANDS

LONDON. EVERY time the hands are washed, a cream or lotion should be used immediately afterwards.

Cleaning Feather Pillows

THE LATEST IN "GOLD"

New Metal Which Has Strong Resemblance.

A NEW LONDON IDEA

EAR clips, brooches, bangles, powder-boxes, and cigarette cases in gold are now "le grand chic." Costly. Yes. But here is good news for those who like to be in the swim without danger of sinking financially.

At a London store had "loose powder" flap jacks in the new square shape, with matching cigarette cases. They are made in a new metal that is indistinguishable, even by the experts, from gold, the weight, design, and workmanship—even to sunk hinges—being identical with that associated with the real thing. It does not tarnish, and is very durable.

Another and more prosaic discovery is a new streamline silk-and-rubber suspender that has no metal parts and is so designed that it is perfectly flat and invisible under these skin-tight evening gowns of the moment.

Augustabernard adopts 1880 lines for evening with much bust emphasis. Peplums and tunics are in evidence. And frilly, frothy petticoats that show and swish noiselessly when you dance are revived.

Quick And Easy Method.

WHEN bedding is overhauled it may be found necessary to renew the ticking of one or two pillows or bolsters. The inside of the new case should be well rubbed with a smooth piece of soap, and then the feathers may be transferred in the following way.

First shake all the feathers as far as possible from the end which is to be opened and then unpick the stitching. Lay this open and against the opening of the new case and tack the two together into one length.

Then take hold of the old case by the bottom corners and shake the feathers out of it into the new one. Unpick the tacking and sew up the new case. This method is quick, and easy, and it effectively prevents the feathers from escaping and flying about.

D.B.S. SCOUTS HOLD AQUATIC SPORTS MEET

Wolves Beat Others In Close Finish.

WIRTH AND DUDLEY PROVE OUTSTANDING

The Wolves patrol of the Diocesan Boys' School Scout Troop again proved themselves superior to the other patrols in the second annual swimming gala which was held in the Y.M.C.A. bath yesterday afternoon.

C. Wirth and J. Dudley, both of the Wolves, shared the honours with three wins and one second place.

The most keenly contested race was the Relay. The Wolves took the lead through Dudley from the start. E. Rapley maintained the advantage, but J. Pretijohn (Foxes) and Tui Shui-han (Olters) both beat Young Cheung Hing. C. Wirth (Wolves) started 10 yards behind Hulse (Olters), and after a hard fight managed to beat him by a touch.

Plates Picked Up

In the diving for plates Dudley did extremely well by picking all 12 plates up. He was under the water for about three quarters of a minute. Young Frank Jarrett (Olters) one of the smallest members of the troop did well by securing eight plates, and Tui Shui-han (Olters) recovered 11 plates.

The sports were run under the supervision of Mr. C. B. R. Sargent, Scoutmaster and Headmaster, and Mr. G. S. P. Heywood, Assistant Scoutmaster, while Mr. D. I. Luard and Mr. T. S. W. Chan, masters at the School, were judges.

SHATTERS OWN MARK IN V.R.C. BATH

Marques Impresses In Breast-Stroke.

WOMEN CONTENDERS SHINE

W. Lawrence, the V.R.C. and Colony's 100 Yards swimming champion fulfilled all expectations at the opening swimming gala of the V.R.C. last evening when he swam a magnificent race in the senior class members' 100 Yards free style event to better his own bath record by 3/5 of a second.

Lawrence covered the distance in 59 1/5 secs., and is now only a fifth of a second off the bath record set up by D. Lyon in 1924. A. A. Roza, who won the race, swam remarkably well to cover the distance in 61 2/5, improving more than two full seconds on his previous best.

Another sensation was provided by E. M. Marques, who swam from scratch to win the 100 Yards breast stroke event in 79 2/5 secs., setting up the fastest time yet recorded by a V.R.C. member for this distance.

He swam an inspired race to overhaul A. A. Roza, the limit man in the last few yards to win by a touch. Marques is in fine fettle and should greatly improve upon this time before the end of the season.

Distinguished Guests
A fairly large audience watched the swimming among whom were Sir Thomas Southern, Colonial Secretary and President of the Club, and Lady Southern.

At the conclusion of the swimming events, the prizes were presented by Lady Southern.

Sir Thomas congratulated the Club on its opening gala of the season, which he remarked was very fortunate to have been held in delightful weather. Usually the Club's opening night was the signal for a typhoon.

He congratulated the swimmers on their fine performances, especially the women competitors, adding that the Club wished in particular to make this a successful year, not only in swimming but in other sports.

The Events
In the absence of W. T. Campbell, and H. Ozorio who are on the sick list, only one race, instead of two, was held in the senior class 100 Yards event.

A. A. Roza shot off at a terrific speed with four seconds over the scratch men, Lawrence and Roza-Pereira, and, in spite of their efforts, maintained his lead well up to the third length. The two scratch men overtook Paget on the third length, and Lawrence drew slightly ahead of Roza-Pereira to challenge Roza. The latter, however, displayed surprising stamina to keep his lead to the finish, with Lawrence finishing strongly a length behind.

Lawrence's time of 59 1/5 seconds was warmly applauded, and A. A. Roza also received a great ovation for his fine performance.

Results were as follows:
100 Yards Boys' Handicap.

1. L. M. Remedios; 2. A. Azedo; 3. W. Lawrence; 4. A. A. Roza; 5. A. A. Roza; 6. A. A. Roza; 7. A. A. Roza; 8. A. A. Roza; 9. A. A. Roza; 10. A. A. Roza; 11. A. A. Roza; 12. A. A. Roza.

SHANGHAI LAWN TENNIS TEAM HELD

South China Players More Experienced.

VICTORS DISPLAY BETTER STROKE PRODUCTION

The South China Athletic Association entertained the touring lawn tennis team from St. John's University, Shanghai, at King's Park yesterday, but the match was abandoned with the visitors leading in the fifth and deciding contest.

South China distinguished themselves in the first set, winning two of the three matches, while St. John's showed a definite advantage in the doubles, winning one match, and leading in the abandoned match.

Some very fine play was witnessed in the doubles match in which Y. S. Tong and K. H. Wong defeated K. C. Luk and W. T. Lee, the local pair.

The Shanghai pair held all the advantage in the first set, winning without the loss of a game, but in the second set the South China pair staged a magnificent recovery, extending their opponent to 20 games.

Tong and Wong displayed some superlative strokes, and the agility of Wong, who is short of stature, was responsible for many excellent recoveries.

The combination of the Shanghai pair was a lesson to the local team. They were rarely caught out of position.

Fine Singles Contest

D. C. Luk, South China, gave a very creditable performance when he defeated A. C. Ma, the star of the Shanghai team, and one of the men who represented China in the recent International Tennis Tournament in Shanghai.

As with the other players, Ma's stroke production was good, his backhand being as good as anything witnessed in the Hong Kong Tennis League this season, but Luk's greater experience proved the determining factor.

Ma's forehand stroke was not as good as his backhand, and he frequently showed weakness in his driving.

Wong's Good Win

S. W. Wong, South China, had a definite advantage over Tennis Kwok. The visitor's play was very pretty to watch, his stroke play also being very good. He follows through with his drives well, but the greater experience and court-craft of the home player gave him an advantage, which the more accurate shots of his opponent were unable to overcome.

Y. S. Tong, the only St. John's singles winner, played a sound game to defeat C. C. Luk.

He held the upper hand throughout the match, and appeared to have the advantage of experience over his opponent, in addition to the advantage displayed by most of the Shanghai team in their stroke play.

Well Placed Drives

W. H. Ho and S. Chan, the South China veteran pair, were unable to cope with Tennis Kwok and S. Chan, although at times they looked like breaking through to win. Kwok's service and stroke play were again well to the fore, while Chan displayed some very fine work at the net. He was exceedingly agile, and was responsible for returning many of the well-placed drives of Ho and Chan.

Yesterday's scores were:—
Singles.

D. C. Luk (South China) beat A. C. Ma (St. John's) 6-2, 2-6, 6-2.

S. W. Wong (South China) beat Tennis Kwok (St. John's) 6-3, 6-0.

C. C. Luk (South China) lost to Y. S. Tong (St. John's) 3-6, 4-6.

Doubles.

K. C. Luk and W. T. Lee (South China) lost to Y. S. Tong and K. H. Wong (St. John's) 0-6, 9-11.

W. H. Ho and S. Chan (South China) lost to Tennis Kwok and S. Chan (St. John's) 5-7.

The other set was abandoned owing to rain with the scores at 4-2 in favour of the St. John's pair.

THE Police senior team caused a sensation in yesterday's Lawn Bowls League matches by defeating the Craigengower Cricket Club "B" team by 68 shots to 56 to record their first win of the season.

No other sensational upsets occurred, although the defeat of the Recreio Junior Division team by the Civil Service Cricket Club was unexpected. The Recreio were unlucky, the margin by which Civil Servants won being only one shot.

YORKSHIRE ARE DISPLACED IN CRICKET RACE

Light Blue Captain's Unavailing Effort.

INDIAN GIVES OXFORD WIN

London, Yesterday.
In spite of brilliant bowling by Jack Lee, who secured 7 for 45, Essex beat Somerset at Colchester to displace Yorkshire in the county cricket championship table.

Freddie Brown, member of Jardine's touring eleven, rattled up 119 for Surrey on the picturesque Edgbaston ground, but Warwickshire, with 7 wickets in hand, were only 118 runs behind when the game was abandoned as a draw.

R. H. Human, the Cambridge skipper, displayed encouraging form on the eve of the 'Varsity match with an innings of 129 at Lord's, where the 'Varsity match will commence on Monday.

The Light Blue bowlers, however, were treated with scant respect, and the University lost by 170 runs.

F. C. de Saram, the former Ceylon boy who shared the distinction of scoring the first century this season with Ashdown, was seen at his best at Reigate where his innings of 208, out of 399, was mainly responsible for Oxford's fine win over H. D. Leveson-Gower's XI.

MEN LIKE MUSSOLINI ARE RARE

Magnetic Attraction Of Italy's Dictator

Efficient And Energetic

(By A WOMAN ADMIRER)

Rome. HISTORY teaches that from time to time one man rises high above his fellow-creatures, to become a leader and reformer. Such men are rare, and are justly deserving of the devotion and popular enthusiasm they receive.

Such a man is Benito Mussolini, the leader of Fascist Italy. In the twelve years which have followed the Fascist Revolution he has performed that which is little short of a miracle.

Gone are the days when the slacker was the predominant national habit. To-day men in Italy must work hard, while the women are expected to bear children and tend their homes. There is no time for idleness and little place for luxury. If Duce himself is a man tremendous energy. No detail is too small to escape his attention, for his heart is with his people. Efficiency and energy have superseded the whimsical picturesque idleness. Every square yard of arable land is cultivated.

THE WOMAN'S SPHERE

There is in Italy plenty for everybody—for all, that is to say, who are willing to work.

The care of children and the moral and physical training of the rising generation are subjects of intense interest to Il Duce. The decline in infant mortality is an outstanding proof of the success of his methods.

I have had the honour of being received by Signor Mussolini in the fifteenth-century palace in Rome where he carries out his official duties, and have spoken with him on the subject so near to his heart. Mussolini believes that women are at their best when working in the home. In his opinion woman's highest sphere in life lies in her readiness to undertake, and her capacity for, wifehood and motherhood.

Women who make their husband comfortable and contented, and who rear healthy, happy children to populate a new and thriving Italy, are the women most to be admired and respected. The emancipated woman is rarely the happiest woman—or so thinks Italy's leader. For a nation to be truly great it is necessary for its women to be feminine and home-loving.

IL DUCE'S WORKROOM

Just as, in Fascist Italy, the boy is trained from his earliest years to become a good citizen, with the capacity, if need be, to bear arms in defence of his country, so is the small Italian girl drawn into the national organisation which has been created to equip her for the competent fulfilment of her feminine duties in the new State. From the age of six to eighteen her health and physical development are assured by a dual system of health supervision and physical culture. The young maidens I have seen in the streets of Rome and other cities are living testimonials to the efficacy of this system.

To be received by Signor Mussolini himself is an unforgettable experience. I was first impressed by the absence of superfluous etiquette. I was ushered into an ante-room in the beautiful, old-world Palazzo Venezia, where Signor Mussolini works and receives visitors.

I found myself transported back to the Middle Ages. The room, with its lovely floor of ancient tiles and mosaics, the vaulted stone roof, the priceless oil paintings hanging on broadened walls, was at once simple, and yet magnificent. The silence of this ante-chamber was broken only by the evening chimes from some near-by church.

A manservant, giving me the Fascist salute, bade me follow him. I passed through a huge salon panelled in gold, with dark furniture and powder-blue hangings, and thus into Signor Mussolini's own apartment. An impression of space, simplicity and beauty in the room itself, and then I found myself face to face with the man who has done so much for his country in so short a time.

PERSONAL CHARM

It would be impossible to describe in cold print the magnetic attraction that is such an integral part of the personality of Il Duce. The world is familiar with that fine head and brilliant eyes, the strong jaw denoting purpose and strength; but there is also a charm about the man which can be sensed only by those who have spoken with him. The quiet voice, the courtesy, and the natural grand seigneur manner are all part of his greatness.

He asked me whether everyone had been kind to me during my stay in Italy. I replied that I had received on every hand perfect consideration. Had I been able to see something of the Fascist organisations for the training and protection of the youth of Italy? I explained that, through the courtesy of the Foreign Office, I had been accorded all such facilities.

ROME OF TO-DAY

What did I think of Rome? And at that question I was left tongue-tied; for who can describe the incredible beauty of the Eternal City as it is to-day, a city whose blend of the ancient and modern, relics of Imperial Roman and mediaeval architecture, countless churches, fountains and gardens endow her with an unrivalled splendour and loveliness?

The interview was, for me, all too short. Signor Mussolini touched upon many subjects, and as he talked I sensed beneath his quiet manner that dominant patriotism and inflexible faith in the future of his country which has made him its leader.

I found him bending over my hand in a graceful leave-taking. And as I walked down the broad steps of the palace into the blazing sunshine of the Piazza Venezia, I wondered if any other political leader in modern Europe could be at once so simple, so dynamic, and so commanding.

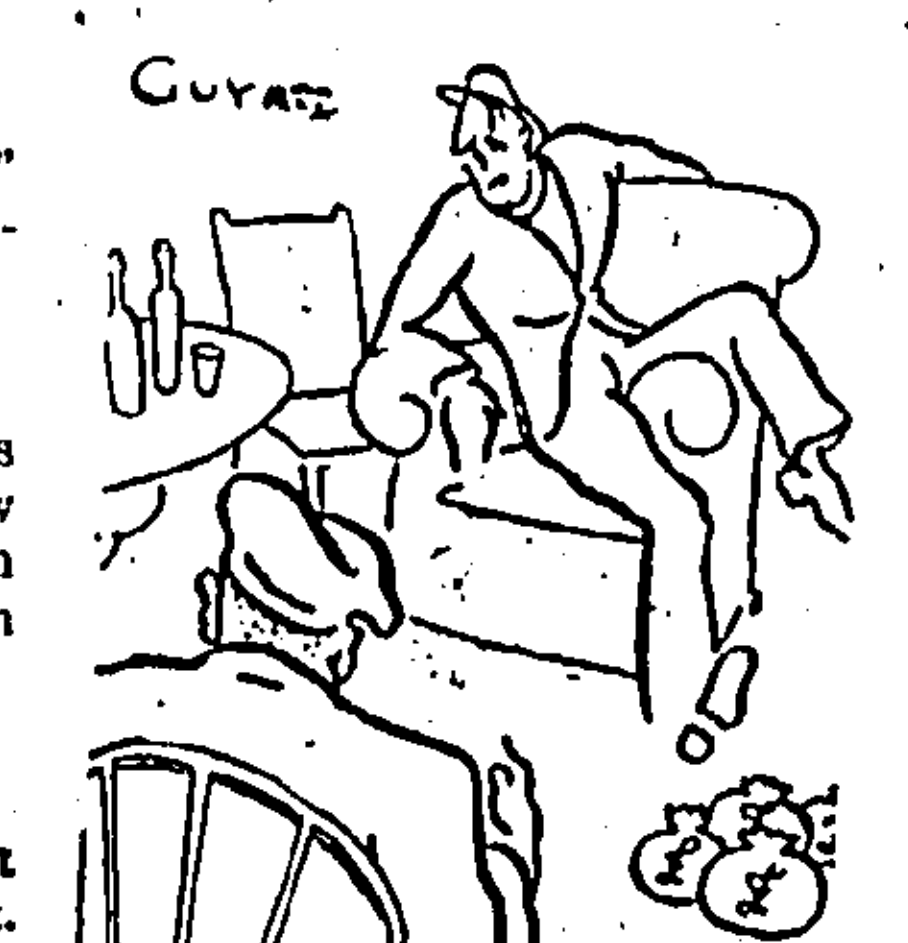

WISE & OTHERWISE

The Call of Nature
The cult of nudism, says a writer, is attracting thousands of new followers. Not, of course, including sightseers.

Film Note
A new game in Hollywood is miniature quills. This is played with the stars' surplus wedding rings.

Better Late Than Never
"If you're only in for twelve years," said the lifer to the new arrival, "you might post this letter for me when you get out."

Burglar: "Shall we count up how much we got from the bank?"
Mate: "No need. We shall see it in the newspaper to-morrow."

Answer to Correspondent (2)
The Devil's Punch-bowl, Henry, was caused by a Scotsman who once lost a sixpence there.

NOT A CONTORTIONIST
"A miserable bath, madam," complained the visitor, "a tiny piece of soap and no back brush."
"But you've got a tongue in your head," replied the landlady sharply. "I know," said the visitor, "but I'm not a contortionist."

Appeal to England Fieldsmen
"Gentlemen, hold your Aussie!"

Britain's Best Geneva Policy.
Genever again.

Prosperity Returning
Eton boys were, once again allowed to wear fancy waistcoats on the Fourth of June.
The world must be on the mend, boys!

NATURE NOTE
A red rose means "I love you."
A red nose means "I'll have another."

OUCH!
A bee uses twenty-three muscles to sting you. I forget just how many muscles the average person has, but when stung he uses them all.

AGREED
"It is the little things that trouble us," remarks an essayist. Yes, one can sit on an elephant but not on an ant.

POOR DEAR
Auntie Ermyntrode is now under the impression that Cowes week is a publicity stunt by the Milk Marketing Board.

In The Flesh
"My wife is an angel," says a clergyman. He's lucky, mine is still alive.

THIS WEEK'S HERO
The man who, while in the dentist's waiting-room, laughed at a piece of soap and no back brush.

CHINESE GIRL BEING WEDDED IN MELBOURNE

Colony's Only Woman Accountant.

MISS GOOEY TALKS ON
HONG KONG CHANGES.

Miss Alice Gooley, Sue Gooley, one of the Melbourne's cleverest girl students, who left Australia eight years ago to be an accountant with Messrs. Percy, Smith, Seth and Fleming in Hong Kong, has now returned to Australia to be married.

Miss Gooley first met her fiancé, Mr. Thomas Sym Choan, in Adelaide, many years ago, and they met again in Hong Kong in 1927. A few months ago they became engaged, and Miss Gooley has now returned to her Australian home to spend a few months with her mother, before her marriage, after which she will live in Adelaide.

Miss Gooley was one of the first three women in Melbourne to become a qualified accountant. Women were not admitted as accountants when she passed her examinations, and she had to wait until special rules were passed before she could be registered. In Hong Kong she was the only girl accountant, and she is probably the only Chinese girl accountant anywhere.

Western Modes.

Between keeping a business eye on ledgers and balance sheets, Miss Gooley found time to notice many changes in her eight years in Hong Kong.

"Some of the fashionable Chinese women are now among the smartest in the world," she says. "They have beautiful skins and wear the most up-to-date European clothes."

"The girls use very heavy make-up, but it suits their national costumes where it would look all wrong with European clothes."

"Flappers still wear the national costume, which has changed in eight years from the short tunic and long trousers to the long tunic, closely fitting, with a high collar."

"In the evening all Chinese women wear their national dress, even with the high collar. They are in the most beautiful materials, silks and satins, wonderfully sequined, and in glorious colours."

Taken To Sport.

"Chinese girls have taken to sport, and are becoming taller. Swimming seems to be the favourite exercise. Every little Chinese flapper has her backless bathing gown."

"Even the permanent wave, unheard of in the China of the pigtail days, has come to stay, and all the little girls have bobs."

Poet's Corner

"Deception."

(TO CONNY).

I thought I felt a new day dawn
Without life's irony;
I thought I saw a star shine o'er
My life in agony.

I thought that love had entered my Despondent bleeding heart;
I thought my new-found happiness
Would never more depart.

I thought you true, above reproach,
So saintly and divine,
I thought your captivating smiles
And sweet glances all mine.

But now I've learned that all is vain,
My soul weeps and is lone,
No joy is left, love cannot gain
A heart now turned to stone.

HONG KONG, SUNDAY, JULY 8, 1934.

Rebuilding Hong Kong.

It is an ill wind that blows nobody any good; and in England the suspension of foreign loans has been a godsend to the householder. Ten years ago the famous financial critic, Mr. Maynard Keynes, wrote a strong protest against the revival of the flotation of foreign loans in place of dealing with the vast shortage of housing. He pointed out that the various borrowers already owed more than the state of trade would allow them to repay; and that in case of default there would be nothing at all to show for the investment. "Whereas," he said, "if you put your money into houses even if they should for some time stand empty, you will always have the houses." It is, of course, a great pity that in England taste runs so uniformly in the direction of the small detached or semi-detached villa of monotonous design; but at any rate the enormous shortage is being reduced, and even outbreaks of "bungalowitis" are better than being forced to start housekeeping at the mercy of a landlord.

The diversion of capital from speculative investments into the improvement of buildings seems to be an almost world-wide movement; and Hong Kong is no exception. The centre of the city has been altered out of recognition in the last few years. When the new Bank is finished there will be little of the old appearance left, and still more so when the whole of the resultant changes arising from the demolition of the old Town-hall are carried out. But we are more concerned at the moment with the housing developments. The Colony has now reached an age when the older buildings have suffered from the ravages of the climate sufficiently to require rebuilding. The old "Albany Barracks" and several of the other largest and best known boarding houses are to come down, and it will make a great difference to the look of the place what takes their place. The boarding house system seems to have gone out of fashion, and will not be deeply regretted by those who have endured the rather depressing social effects of that compromise between a home and a hotel, which gave one neither the privacy of the one nor the independence of the other. The tide flows strongly towards flats, and especially "service flats." There is a great opportunity for our architects to devise something which will emphasise the home aspect at the expense of the barrack aspect of the new blocks.

Apart from the fact that the older buildings are tumbling to pieces and need constantly to be put into repair, there is no question of their superior comfort. Two generations ago people built for the climate. Contrivances like electric fans cannot replace the comfort of thick walls and high ceilings. And in all tropical places builders should never forget that a large part of the actual life of a family will most happily be spent not within walls at all but on a wide and airy verandah. Rooms we must have for dressing and for shelter from rain and wind; and a good airy kitchen goes a long way to make housekeeping run smoothly; but a broad verandah with sun blinds doubles the effective accommodation.

The pioneers of Hong Kong, like all the early settlers in warm Colonies, built for comfort, and as they were making homes they made also gardens, and provided good servants' quarters. There is not any lack of space, in spite of our living on the side of a hill. The modern engineers, with their steel frames and other inventions, have really made it easier, not more difficult, to achieve the old ideal of making homes; it is the ideal itself that has perished.

In a word, what we should like to see would be an end to the too easy practice of importing along with the steel girders plans made by men who live under totally different conditions. There are scarcely two sites on the Island that are alike in aspect, and building possibilities; everywhere we see sites that will only be wasted if stereotyped and imitative designs are used.

Why should not our Land Companies resort to the procedure so common elsewhere of advertising for competitive plans? The small extra trouble and expense would be repaid by the popularity of flats that had some character of their own. Let us make every change an improvement, and end up by extending the Peak Tramway itself into the town. The "Mid-levels" are the most healthy part of the Colony and ought to be developed to the utmost.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Mrs. F. Richardson wishes to express her sincere thanks to the Officers and other ranks of the R.A.O.C., the staff of the Military Hospital and friends for their many expressions of sympathy in her recent bereavement, and also for floral tributes and attendance at the funeral.

POST OFFICE SUPPORT FOR ANY AIRWAY RATE REDUCTION UNDER CONSIDERATION

GOVERNMENT SUPPORT NEEDED TO PLACE COLONY ON MAP

(By Our Aviation Correspondent.)

AN important factor when considering the extension of the air-lines, which now run from Europe to Singapore, to Hong Kong, is the attitude of the Post Office, and, following an interview with Mr. M. Brean, Post-Master General of Hong Kong, it is good to learn that any line which, some time in the future, may be run from Bangkok to Hong Kong, would have the full support of the Postal authorities with regard to the handling of postal matter.

Considering the comparatively small population, particularly of the type which is likely to use air mail, in Hong Kong, quite a considerable amount of mail matter goes from here to Europe. Last month the total was 46,516 grammes, while in the second quarter of the year the amount carried was 158,370 grammes, as compared with 136,467 grammes in the first quarter.

MANY DIFFICULTIES

An air-mail from Hong Kong to Bangkok would be an expensive one. Suitable machines would cost from at least $3,000 to $5,000 each. Landing grounds would have to be prepared between and at stopping places, many of which would be costly to construct, and in terminal ports considerable overhead expenses would be entailed with ground staffs, buildings etc.

In addition to this is the constant renewal of machines, a heavy depreciation factor, pilots' salaries, and all other running expenses.

Any local company would have to go thoroughly into the whys and wherefores of what would be the return on their capital. Whether they would carry mails only, or run a passenger and parcels service, and most important of all, what help would be forthcoming from the Government, either locally or at Home.

A PAYING LINE

The majority of air mails are only enabled to run by the subsidies they obtain from the Government. Perhaps the London to Paris run, which serves cities with populations of 7,000,000 and 4,000,000 is able to run and pay a handsome dividend, but an entirely different view must be taken of the position in Hong Kong, where there is a European population of some 10,000 and a long fairly hazardous journey to Bangkok.

It is therefore obvious that, whether the line is to be run by a local company or by Imperial Airways, healthy support must be received from the Government.

GOVERNMENT SUPPORT

In the past the local Government have always shown themselves to have the interests of progress in the Colony at heart, and their support should be at hand to foster this most important work.

That it is an important work is very patent after a moment or two's thought.

At an initial glance it might occur to one that the expense of installing an air-way is not justified by the amount of postal and passenger traffic it would carry, but, if a broad view of the future is taken, one must realise that we are now merely at the beginning of things.

A stupendous wall of commerce is to be tapped in China, and if Great Britain is lagging behind, through fear of risking a few thousand dollars, or through the lack of encouragement from the right quarters, our opportunities will slip away, and we shall probably see the enormous aerial traffic of the future being carried by some foreign line.

The difficulties are enormous—the most enthusiastic supporter of the scheme would frankly admit that—but the prize, although initially small, will be ample compensation for the amount of risk and labour entailed.

More difficult airways have been instituted, parts of the present Imperial Airways lines were just as difficult, but a safe and efficient service is now maintained along all those lines.

SAFETY FACTOR

The factor of safety in the air is far greater than is thought by the average layman. The Dutch Airways have been running for some four years to Batavia from Amsterdam, and have had only one serious accident.

The French Airways have a similar record over a period of three years, the only accident being caused by masses of ice forming on the wings of a machine when flying over the Apennines.

The Imperial Airways to Singapore, which cover a long and hazardous route, have not yet had a serious accident.

For 18 years, starting after the war with old military planes, the Queensland and Northern Territories Air Services, familiarly known as Quantas, have run a service from Brisbane to Port Darwin without a fatal accident, and with only very rare forced landings.

The Quantas planes are used as a clock by the bushmen of Queensland. If a Quantas is due to pass over at noon on Wednesday, something is radically wrong if it does not appear.

These instances all point out the enormous margin of safety in regular air mail services, and the feeling of security with which important mail matter can be despatched in this manner.

HELP FROM G. P. O.

The question of the cost of postage on air mails is, of course, an important feature, and in this respect the Post Office are doing everything to meet the case. Although it costs over $1.00 for an airmail letter from Hong Kong to England, the postal department are not getting rich on it, as it costs them almost that amount to have the letters conveyed by either the Imperial Airways, Dutch, or French lines, without the cost of mailing from Hong Kong to Singapore by boat.

MR. CHEN KAE-KUNG

Hong Kong was represented in the group of more than 4,000 students who graduated from New York University on June 13 at the 102nd Commencement Exercises at Ohio Field, University Heights, New York.

The local graduate was Mr. Chen Kae-kung of No. 121 Wellington St., Jurist Doctor in Law School.

The exercises featured the installation of Dr. Harry Woodburn Chase as eighth Chancellor of the University. Dr. Chase, for 10 years president of the University of North Carolina and for three years head of the University of Illinois, last July succeeded Dr. Elmer Ellsworth Brown, Chancellor Emeritus of New York University, who also took part in the installation ceremonies.

Following his installation Dr. Chase delivered an inaugural address in the form of a commencement address, conferred degrees upon approximately 4,100 graduates and invested six nationally prominent persons with honorary degrees. The honorary degree recipients included the Presidents of Yale, Harvard and Princeton Universities.

While working on a ship at the Tai Koo Dockyard last Friday, Ng Fuk slipped and fell off a staging, sustaining minor injuries which necessitated his removal to the Government Civil Hospital for treatment.

HONG KONG AND THE NEW TERRITORIES. — No. 112.

Summer Flowering Plants.

Without doubt the flowering shrub of July is the Melastoma. The word means "black mouth" due to the fact that the berries of some of the species if eaten stain the mouth black. There are two local shrubby species in addition to the small flowered creeping M. repens. We have seen Melastomas in other tropical countries but in no place in our experience do they produce finer flowers than in Hong Kong. The reason is that a dry period followed by hot humid weather such as we are now experiencing results in the largest flowers. M. sanguineum has flowers which may be five inches in diameter with 6, 7 or 8 purplish pink petals. The leaves and stems possess thick red bristle-like hairs. The fruit is clothed with similar reddish hairs which project almost at right angles and then bend upwards, somewhat reminiscent of a teasel head. In M. candidum the flowers are smaller, rarely exceeding 4 inches in diameter and have 5 or 6 petals typically. The fruit is closely covered with silky hairs and similar hairs are found on the stem and leaves. Both species are abundant throughout the Colony.

Clematis.

The Clematis in flower just now is an extensive climber called Clematis mejaniana, it is by far the commonest of our five local species. The flowers are borne in large much branched panicles each in the axil of a leaf. Each flower has four white petals approximately 1/2 inch long and 1/4 inch in width, there are numerous stamens with smooth filaments and anthers approximately 1/3 total length of stamen. The leaf possesses about five leaflets each on a long thin tendril-like stalk; the margin of the leaflet is entire. This might well be called the Hong Kong Travellers Joy.

Perhaps the most striking object of the month is the fruit pod of Sterculia lanceolata. This tree is widespread in the Colony growing best near stream beds. There are several trees on the left side of the far end of the road by Repulse Bay. The pods are borne in fives arranged radially; each is 2 to 3 inches in length, 1 1/2 inches in depth and boat-shaped with the flat edge uppermost. When ripe the pods, or follicles as they should be called, are vivid scarlet-vermillion and appear as if made of velvet. They split on the lower surface to disclose a double row of large jet black seeds which are greatly enjoyed by certain birds, e.g., the Chinese Blue Magpie, the bird with the long tail. Sterculia platyfolia is cultivated both here and in the United States as a roadside tree for the beauty of its fruit pods. In Malayan jungle we have on more than one occasion seen the ground strewn with fallen pods of a species of Sterculia.

The Long-Tailed Tailor Bird.

In England by now most of the birds have finished nesting but not so in Hong Kong. Here the nesting season lasts for nine months from mid-December to the end of August. The Chinese Spotted Dove nests during the whole of this long period but we have no records for any other single species exceeding a six months' period. The Chinese Tailor Bird, Orthotomus sutorius longicauda nests from the beginning of March to the end of August. Two or three large leaves are sown together and a delightful little nest of fine grass, wool and down built inside. We have seen several nests of this bird but all have been either between fig leaves or between leaves of Uvaria microcarpa; yesterday, however, in our garden we found a new nest constructed between three leaves of an Avocado pear at a height of two feet from the ground. This bird can easily be distinguished from other warblers by the presence of a little tuft of chestnut feathers on the forehead and by the presence of chestnut feathers on the tibiae.

BANK OFFICIAL PASSES

Mr. James McLellan Walker.

WELL-KNOWN AMATEUR ACTOR

Mrs. Walker Due To Arrive Here On Tuesday

The death occurred early yesterday morning at the War Memorial Hospital, after an illness lasting six weeks, of Mr. James McLellan Walker, sub-manager of the Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China, at the age of 46. Mr. Walker had been a member of the staff of the Chartered Bank for 26 years, 24 of which had been spent in the Far East, mainly in Hong Kong, Canton and Shanghai. Mrs. Walker, his wife, is due to arrive here on Tuesday. She recently left for England, and, shortly after arriving Home, she was cabled to return. Travelling by air to Singapore, she arrived there yesterday.

A TYPICAL SCOT.

Mr. Walker was an extremely popular member of the staff of the Chartered Bank. Hailing from Glasgow, he was a typical Scot. He left the Hong Kong branch in 1932 for Home leave, and returned to Canton as sub-manager for two years, after which he came to Hong Kong, four months ago, to take up his present position.

He is well-known in the Colony as a sportsman and as an amateur actor.

SEWING MACHINES STOLEN.

Only Six Of Twenty Recovered.

4 MONTHS GAOL FOR THREE CHINESE

Sentences of four months' imprisonment each were passed by Mr. J. H. B. Lee at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court yesterday, on Au Yeung Kee, a 25-year-old shop coolie, Ng Sze Kau, a 29-year-old unemployed, and Ng Ng Kau, a 27-year-old unemployed, for stealing ten, six and four sewing machines, respectively, on December 8, 9, and 10, 1933 from the Singer Sewing Machine Company store in Dundas Street. The machines were valued at $75 each.

All entered the store by means of a broken window. Ng Ng Kau gave his four machines to a coolie to carry and arranged to meet him later.

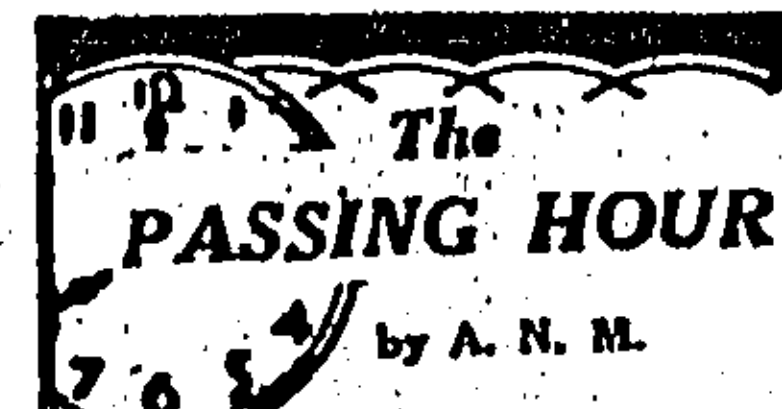

Of the twenty machines which were stolen only six have been recovered, two of which had been sold to other Chinese at $25 each.

All three men were arrested on information received.

Is There An Imperial Law?

FROM the apparently dry considerations that have been referred to, it will be clear that a very big question arises: worthy of the three days' argument by our most distinguished lawyers in London. This is, should not the Judicial Committee administer a set of principles applicable to the whole Empire? And if there are no such principles for crimes on the high seas, when could they be applied?

Piracy.

THE taste for arguing abstract points of law no doubt has to be acquired, but it is a hobby at least as interesting as most; and has often practical bearings that do not lie on the surface. It is all the better when they can be discussed in vacuo, as in this Hong Kong Piracy case concerned with twelve men who were released three years ago, but whose indictment is being considered by the highest Court of the Empire, the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. In theory the Privy Council is merely advising the King and the jurisdiction is therefore as wide as His Majesty's own prerogative. It is not bound by any other Court's decisions, nor, presumably by its own, though it would naturally be very disturbing if there should be any obvious break of continuity. There has been a big movement in the Dominions to put their own Supreme Courts into the place of the Privy Council as final authorities; but the ideal of a coordinating authority for the whole Empire has for the present conquered. All the same any decisions of the Privy Council are very minutely watched.

Hong Kong Precedents.

THE leading case is a decision of the Privy Council in a Blas Bay case, on appeal from Hong Kong, of a certain Kwok Ah Sing in 1873, of which the gist is that the crime of Piracy is committed by anyone who performs at sea any act which would constitute the crime of Robbery if committed on land. In the present case two pirate junks fired seven shots at a Hong Kong fishing junk, but were prevented from committing any act of Robbery by the appearance of another ship, and finally of H.M.S. Somme, which captured the pirate crews and towed their junks into Hong Kong. The incident took place outside of territorial waters. Could the defendants be charged with the crime of piracy?

International Law.

UNDER International Law, or as lawyers would say jure gentium anyone who sets out to be a pirate is ipso facto an outlaw; it appears therefore that the Somme could have blown the two junks out of the water without owing compensation to anybody. By taking the more humane course did the Commander make the defendants immune from punishment? It is not probable that he looked up the law or considered the points that were discussed in our Supreme Court.

Our Municipal Law.

THE fact is that the arguments between Mr. Hinshing Lo and the Hon. The Attorney General on the 'Jure gentium' side of the question do not seem to have been very relevant, for it was long ago recognised that in this branch as in many others International Law is 'vague and embarrassing', and further provision was made by two Acts of the Imperial Parliament, 12-13 Vict. c. 96, amended by 37-38 Vict. c. 3, by which all Piracy cases brought in a Colonial Court are to be tried by the 'municipal' law, that is, the local law. Here that would be the case of Kwok Ah Sing. But we have not yet exhausted the law that might be considered by the Privy Council.

Other Municipal Laws.

THE Judicial Committee is also the final Appeal Court for the other Colonies, Ceylon for instance. Had the case been tried in Colombo, where many such cases were tried in the old days of the East India Company, when Madagascar was the flourishing home of many pirates operating over the Indian Ocean, the applicable law would have been the Roman Dutch Common Law, and the great authority 'Mattheus de Criminalibus' (1-0), where we should find the general principle plumply laid down that an attempt to commit a crime is punishable under the common law as a substantive offence. There must of course be an overt act; but the firing of seven shots is overt enough. The offence of attempt is distinguished from 'incitement' and 'preparation' but in the

The total water consumption on the mainland during June was 322,280,000, as compared with 240,050,000 in June 1933, the consumption per head per day having increased from 20.7 gallons to 27.6 gallons as the result of all restrictions having been raised.

The Island reservoirs are all now level with the overflow, except Ty-tam-Tuk and Wong Nei-Chong, which are both slightly below level. On the mainland all reservoirs are level, except at Kowloon Bywash, which is 16 feet 3 inches below level. A total of 625,300,000 gallons is in storage, as compared with 383,300,000 last year, while the total consumption for June was 308,220,000, as compared with 142,220,000 last year, an increase per head of the Kowloon population from 16.0 gallons to 24.9 gallons.

From June 1 to June 22 a 10-hour supply was available on the Island, and from June 23 a full supply was provided, while last year from June 1 to 27 only a six-hour supply was available, and from June 27 a 10-hour supply was given to districts west of Garden Road, and north of Caine Road.

A full supply was available on the mainland throughout June, while last year only a 6-hour supply was turned on from June 1 to 27, and from June 28 a 10-hour supply.

Holidays Are Gentle Ministries Of God

Alleviate Dullness Of Common Toil

ART OF RELAXATION

(By the Rev. J. N. Lewis Bryan.)

(This is another of the series of articles written exclusively for the "Sunday Herald" by the local Army chaplain.)

SOME people have all the luck! Take a glance at the passenger lists of the ships leaving the Colony, and you find the names of dozens of your friends making off for home, or Japan or Wei-Hai-Wei, so as to avoid the heat of the summer months, or else taking a well-earned leave.

What an almighty blessing holidays can be, and yet how many people there are who never seem to make the best of them, simply because they have never learned the art of resting. There are men who can manage a great business, who cannot manage a little holiday. They find the hours interminable, and secretly wish that they were back at work again.

Nor was there ever a time when holidays were more needed than they are to-day, not because work is so exacting, but because it is so specialised. "Many a man goes through some intellectual process for the greater part of his working hours," said the author of Friends in Council, "which corresponds to the making of a pin's head." It is one of the conditions of his livelihood that he shall concentrate and do so intensely. And it is this fact that makes holidays so imperative. For routine has its perils as well as its blessings. It is difficult to feel how big the world is if we are daily occupied with a pin's head.

And this is just where holidays come in. They are the gentle ministries of God. They are meant to give us back that sense of wholeness which is dulled in the narrowness of common toil. For a while we leave our jobs. We lift up our eyes from the pin's head. We are merged as it were into a common life. We mingle, as Byron has it, with the universe; we feel and we are meant to feel, that touch of nature that makes the whole world kin.

Passiveness A Virtue. Holiday-makers are usually companionable, or as someone quaintly put it, a tourist ticket seems never to be issued to ill-tempered people (though at times their attempts to be "matey" are not always too well-come). The reason of their happiness is just the excitement born of the variety of travel, a glad consciousness of sharing in the great tide of universal life. The tasks are laid down and we begin to see the wholeness of life.

But this sense is not won usually by conscious effort. It was a shrewd, if somewhat dangerous, remark of Tiliot, "Le temps le mieux employé est celui que l'on perd"—"the best employed time is that which one loses." What he meant was that many of the best things come to us without our seeking. It is true of every sphere of life, and especially of holidays. It is a great thing to improve ourselves, but it is a greater thing to let God improve us. It is a noble virtue to be active; it is no less a virtue to be passive. Effort is noble, but it is a tragic mistake to think the best things come solely from it.

The Art Of Pleasure

We need a heart that is open and responsive to the inflow of a thousand mystic influences. And so our holidays would do far more for us if sometimes we did in them a little less, and simply opened the "windows towards Jerusalem" which in the busy days are closed.

Again, so many people, as Froisart puts it, take their pleasures sadly. They have a lurking thought that they ought to be still where dull work is being done. But if that work has been well and truly done the call of rest is definitely the call of God. When Israel was journeying through the wilderness the same cloud that led them, gave them also their rest. The children played, the men took their leisure, the women sat by the tent door with no uneasy conscience. It is not the voice of selfishness that says, Come ye yourselves apart and rest awhile. It is the voice of One who knows our frame, who taught us that there is wisdom for the receptive heart.

"What is there left, sweet soul and true—"

"What for us and our dream to do? What but to take this mighty summer"

"As if it were made for me and you!"

Are not holidays a chance too of remembering others? Others who are not quite so fortunate, who have still to carry on in the burden and heat of the day. Others whom we have not thought about in the busy days, and may perhaps be wondering whether they are entirely forgotten. A few odd moments to drop a line may make all the difference.

Prince Of Companions

In the gospels there is one instance of a holiday,—when the Master said to His disciples "Come ye apart and rest awhile." He did not say "Go ye" but "Come." He did not propose to stay behind. He had been with them in the thick of things and now He wanted to be with them in the shadowy and restful places. Were they disappointed? Not for a moment. They knew that He, the prince of workers would be the prince of holiday companions, and everything would be all the more wonderful because the One whom they loved was there also.

They would have made a pitiful mistake had they gone on holiday without Him.

Are there not countless people who attempt that still? And is it not always a mistake? To leave Him out just when our ambition is to be ourselves seems to be unspeakably foolish. For we are our true selves only when He is with us. It takes His hand to draw the music out. Ruskin has taught us how great and noble memories intensify the beauty of the world. Mountains are grander and valleys are more sweet, when by such memories they have been consecrated. And so when we return to the dull tasks of everyday life, there will be added joy in all that we have seen and done, if all has been touched by memories of Him who loved us and gave himself for us.

PEAK TRAMWAY TO QUEEN'S ROAD

ROSY OUTLOOK AFTER 46 YEAR BATTLE

PRACTICABLE SCHEME FORMULATED

PETITION TO GOVERNMENT

NEARLY HALF A CENTURY AGO THE QUESTION OF EXTENDING THE PEAK TRAMWAY FROM ITS PRESENT TERMINUS IN GARDEN ROAD TO A MORE CENTRAL POSITION IN QUEEN'S ROAD WAS FIRST BROACHED. NOTHING HAS YET BEEN ACHIEVED, THOUGH NEGOTIATIONS WITH THE MILITARY AUTHORITIES, WHO REFUSE TO ALLOW THE TRAMWAY TO EN-CROACH ON THEIR PROPERTY IN GARDEN ROAD, HAVE BEEN IN PROGRESS THROUGHOUT THOSE YEARS.

To-day the outlook is far more optimistic, and an actual sketch of the newly proposed viaduct scheme has already been drawn by Messrs. Leigh and Orange for the Tramway Company. The cost of the project is, of course, unavailable at this early date, but it is learned from a reliable source that Sir Elly Kadoorie, one of the biggest shareholders in the Company, is in favour of the scheme.

The only fly in the ointment is the military, but it is believed by many that they are not likely to view the extension with such disfavour now that a concrete scheme has been formulated. Prominent local residents are heartily in favour of the extension, which was suggested in the "China Mail" in 1888, and many have expressed the desire that a petition be sent to His Excellency the Governor with the request that it might be forwarded to the War Office in London.

THE QUESTION, WHICH EFFECTS, DAILY, APPROXIMATELY 3,500 PEOPLE, AMONG WHOM ARE MANY BUSINESS LEADERS OF THE COLONY, IS IMPORTANT ENOUGH TO REACH THE FLOOR OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS IN THE INTERESTS OF THIS BRITISH OUTPOST.

Interviewed regarding the possibility of such an extension taking place, Mr. D. E. Clark, General Manager, and Mr. L. G. Scott, Chief Engineer and Superintendent of the Company, were most optimistic that one day, perhaps in the near future, the extension would be made possible.

The suggestion of a viaduct would be more costly from the engineering point of view, but would interfere less with existing buildings, running alongside of the Military Detention House, and obviating the blockage of the military road, north of the Detention House.

The viaduct would run from the present station and would come to ground about two-thirds of the distance from the station at Queen's Road Central, the new station being at the corner where the garden of the Officers' Mess is now situated.

SURVEY ALREADY MADE

The Peak Tramway Company have not been inactive regarding the matter, and a full knowledge of the possibilities and difficulties is before them. A preliminary survey of the necessary work was made as far back as 1929.

Two possibilities suggest themselves to the Company, the first and most practicable being to run the tram along the side of Garden Road, through a narrow strip of military land.

The other suggestion is to run the tram over a viaduct to Queen's Road, where an elevator station would convey passengers to and from the cars.

The first suggested manner would not entail any great expense or difficulty, the gradient being easy, and the need for a great deal of levelling being unnecessary.

There would be no interference with traffic while the extensions were being made, the only necessary halt being while the new cables are hooked on to the winding engines.

WINDING GEAR SUITABLE

The present winding equipment, which is a Metropolitan Vickers mining type hoisting gear, fitted with Ward-Leonard control gear, run by 250 h.p. D.C. electric motors, was designed to carry the extra footage of hoist when it was installed in 1926.

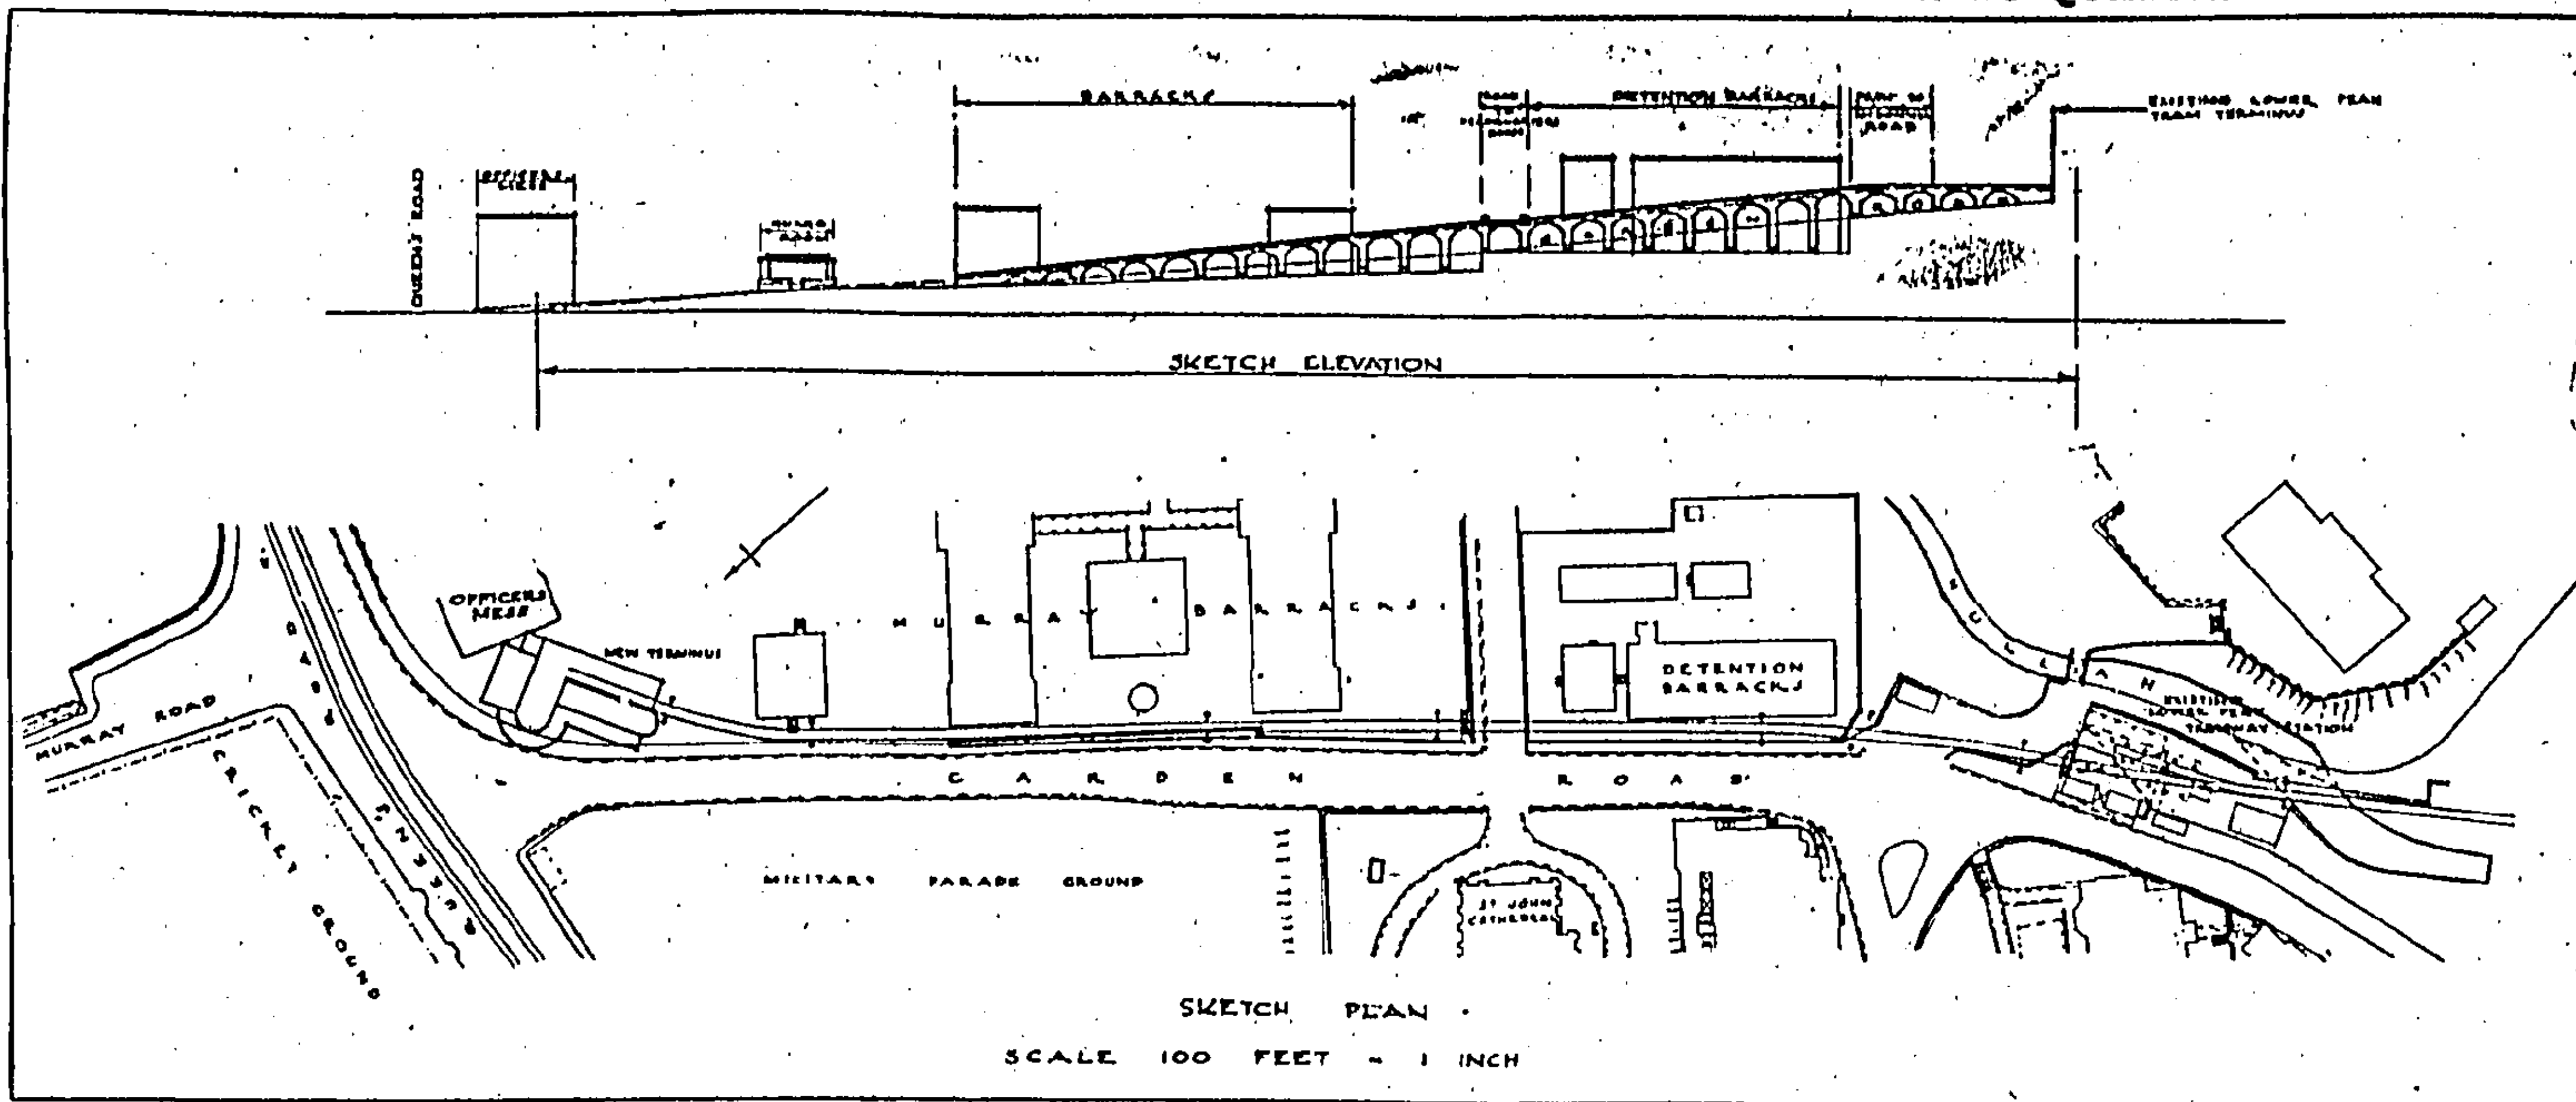

It is interesting to note that this hoisting installation is the only mining type electrical winding gear which has been adapted to passenger use.

The difficulty of extending the trackway from the present station to Queen's Road is not the only point which will have to be overcome in the event of the extension being made.

THE PRESENT TRACK LENGTH IS 4,690 FEET, AND IT IS A TECHNICAL NECESSITY THAT THE CROSSING PLACE BE EXACTLY HALF-WAY, IN ORDER TO BALANCE THE LENGTHS OF THE WINDING CABLES.

THE EXTENSION, WHICH WILL BE OF APPROXIMATELY 1,000 FEET, WILL MEAN AN ALTERATION OF THE PRESENT CROSSING PLACE TO A SPOT SOME 500 FEET LOWER, A PROJECT WHICH WILL POSSIBLY MEAN THE WIDENING OF THE MAY ROAD BRIDGE IN ORDER TO TAKE THE DOUBLE LINE.

SKETCH PLAN AND ELEVATION OF PROPOSED PEAK TRAMWAY EXTENSION TO QUEEN'S ROAD

The sketch elevation at top shows the proposed viaduct which will extend from the present lower tram station to ground level at the Guard Room in Garden Road. The lower sketch plan shows the position of the proposed extension of the track to Queen's Road. It will be seen from this sketch that the track will in no way interfere with the existing military buildings in Garden Road, although it will encroach on the grounds of the Detention Barracks, Murray Barracks, and the Officers' Mess. The original sketches will be on view in the windows of A. S. Watson and Co., Ltd., Alexandra Building, as from to-morrow.

Interviews With Colony's Leading Residents All Favour New Project

Twenty-five leading residents in the Colony have been interviewed in connection with the proposed Peak Tramway extension and all have expressed their favour of the project. To-day six of the "Colony Elders" express their views. The remaining interviews will be published in the "China Mail," which has opened its columns to correspondence on the subject, throughout the coming week.

Sir Thomas Southorn

A representative of the Sunday Herald called upon the Colonial Secretary, Sir Thomas Southorn, not for the purpose of asking for an interview or an expression of opinion on the subject, which naturally could not be given in his official capacity, but merely to give him a preliminary intimation that it is probable that the present agitation regarding the extension of the Peak Tramway will result in an appeal being forwarded to the Government.

Sir Thomas was keenly interested in the news and read carefully the typewritten copies of interviews with various prominent persons.

It was evident that he would like to see the scheme carried out if it is found to be in any way possible and that the Government Authorities would give careful consideration to any practicable proposition for the benefit of the Colony, especially if there were indications that there was a widespread desire on the part of the residents for its accomplishment.

Sir Wm. Shenton

When interviewed by the Sunday Herald, Sir William Shenton expressed his hearty approval of the scheme provided it could be carried out, which he said he doubted, and spoke of the various objections raised in the past when the matter had been brought up. Sir William agreed that it would certainly be a very great convenience and a distinct improvement if the line could be extended to the corner of Queen's Road and Garden Road, making it so much more accessible, not only to residents of the Colony but to tourists, who have great difficulty finding the Lower Station, or who are discouraged when they learn that it is such a climb to get up to it and, consequently, do not go up on the Peak Tram.

Sir William spoke of the suggestion made some years ago of bringing the tram down to Ice House Street, and said this proposition should now be re-considered in view of the proposed changes in connection with the new Government buildings layout.

Mr. V. M. Grayburn

Mr. V. M. Grayburn, Chief Manager of the Hong Kong & Shanghai Banking Corporation, told the Sunday Herald that he was of exactly the same opinion as the other gentlemen already interviewed, as to the desirability of bringing the Peak Tram down to Queen's Road. Mr. Grayburn said it would undoubtedly be a great advantage in every way and a real boon to the Colony.

Mr. R. M. Henderson

Although like the Colonial Secretary, the Director of the Public Works Department, Mr. R. M. Henderson, could express no official opinion, he readily answered the question suggested by Sir William Shenton's interview, as to the possibility of bringing the Peak Tram down to the corner of Ice House Street, in connection with the proposed changes in Government buildings in that vicinity.

Mr. Henderson told the Sunday Herald that he did not think it would be at all feasible either to bring the Peak Tram down through a tunnel or overland to Ice House Street corner.

He agreed that it would be a much simpler and more practicable plan to bring it down Garden Road to Queen's Road, as is now being urged.

Mr. Henderson said the Peak Tramways Company and the general public could be assured that any suggestion that came before the P. W. D. for consideration would be most sympathetically received. He felt that the Military authorities both here and in London would certainly give careful consideration to any appeal coming from a large proportion of the citizens of the Colony and that such an appeal would not be refused unless there were valid reasons for rejecting it.

The Hon. Sir Shouson Chow

Sir Shouson Chow smilingly replied to the enquiry by a representative of the Sunday Herald as to his opinion in regard to the desirability of extending the Peak Tram line down to Queen's Road, saying that it would undoubtedly be a great convenience and would make the Peak Tram a much greater asset to the Colony, but he was of the opinion that it would not be easy to overcome all the obstacles in the way.

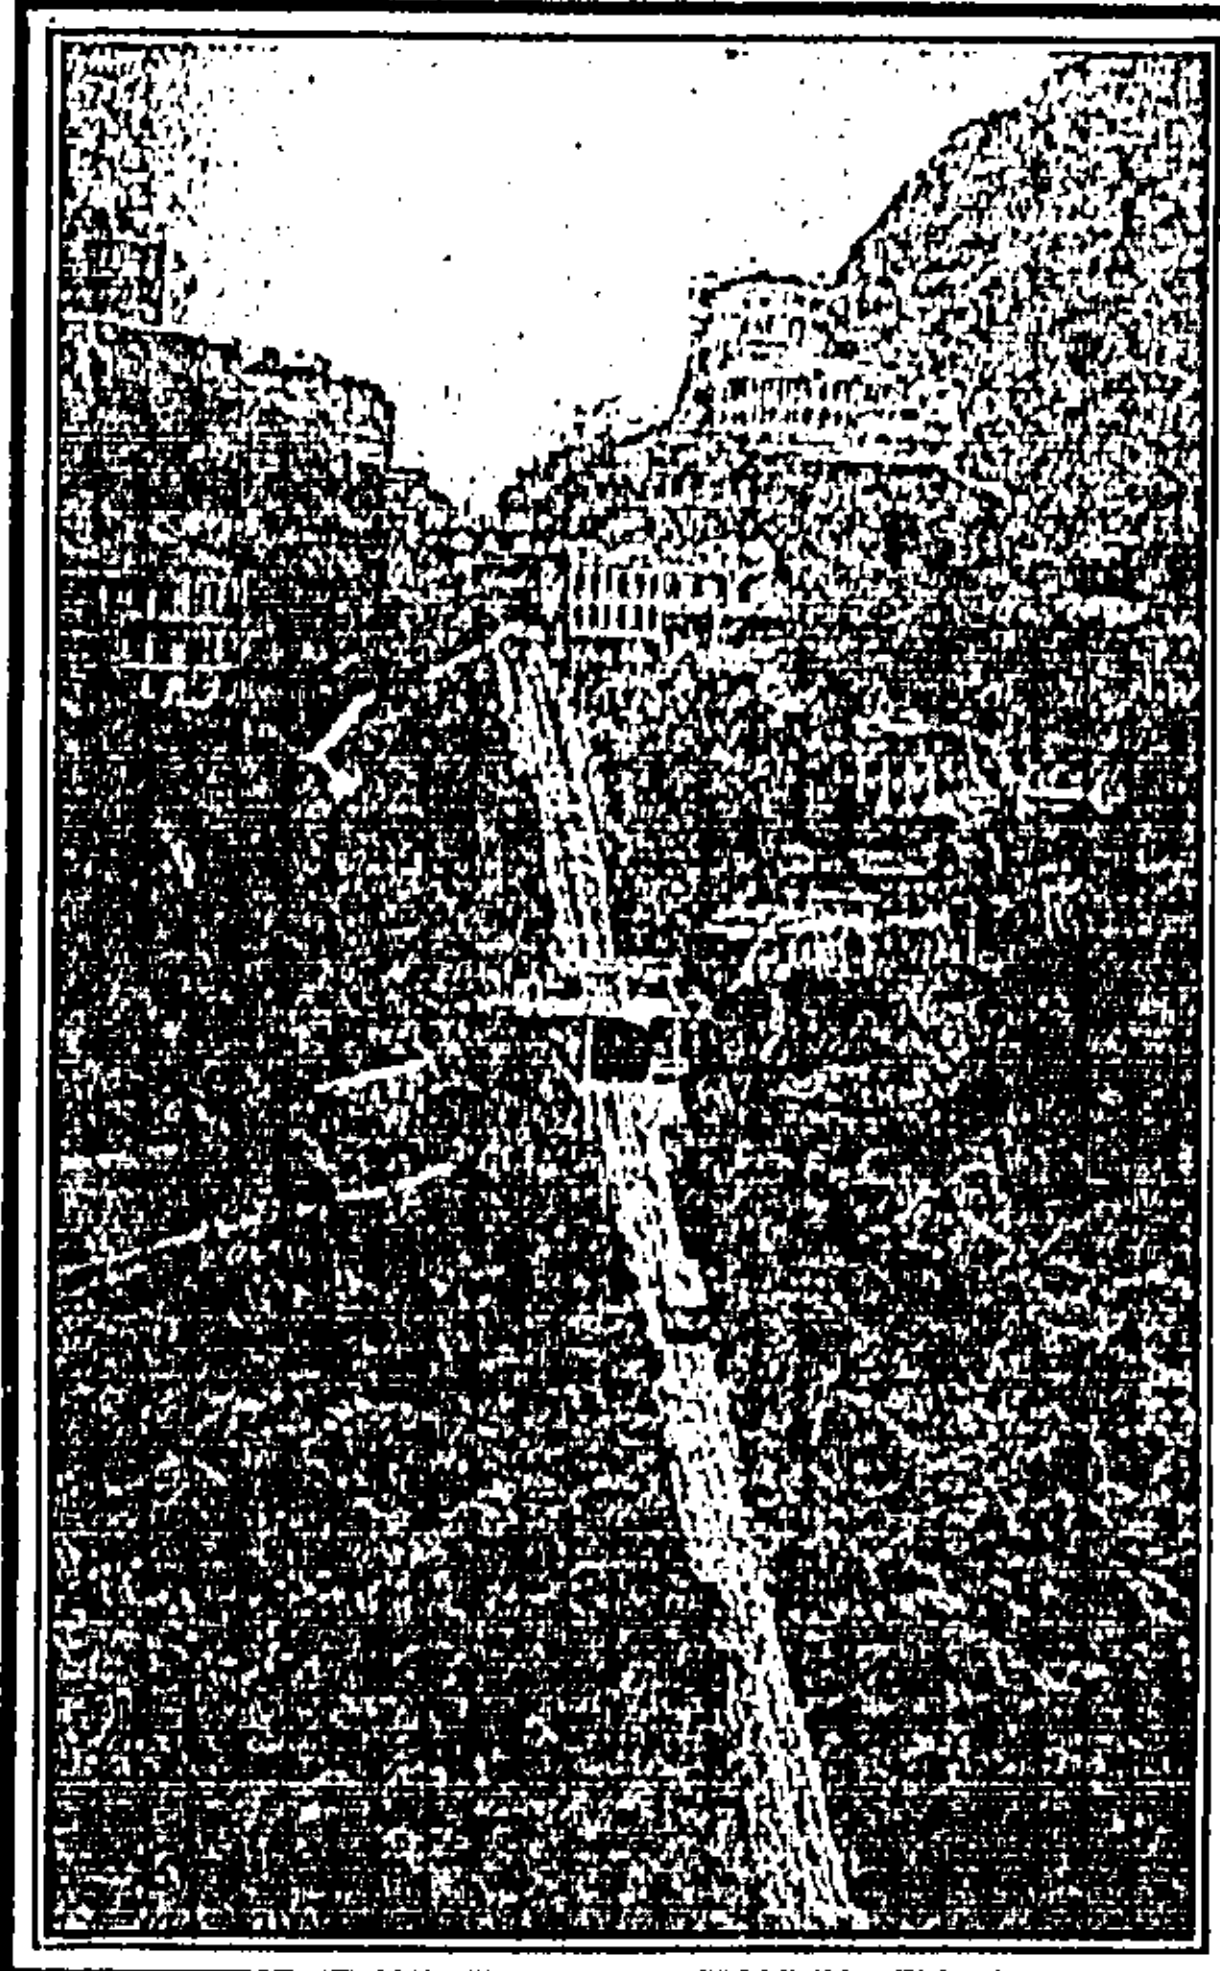

When told that it was the intention to open the columns of the China Mail to the discussion of the suggestion, which was originally made by the China Mail 46 years ago, Sir Shouson said he would be keenly interested in the developments and that, of course, he would gladly do anything within his power to accomplish anything that would be for the benefit of the Colony and for the convenience of the public.

Mr. J. Scott Harston

Mr. J. Scott Harston expressed very keen interest in the proposition, when interviewed by the Sunday Herald, saying that as a Director of the Peak Tramway Company he would be especially interested, though the question of finance would have to be carefully considered.

The beginning of the ascent.

Nearing Peak Station

Military Objections From Start

Asked why the tramway was not extended to Queen's Road when it was originally installed, neither Mr. Clark nor Mr. Scott could give an answer. The project was completed some considerable time before either of them came to the Colony, and the only suggestion they can offer is that the same difficulty with the military authorities stood in their way as hampers the extension to-day.

The military were approached last in 1929, but as far as can be gathered nothing satisfactory resulted from the negotiations.

dored by the Board of Directors. He said everyone would surely agree that it would be a great advantage if the Peak tram could be made more accessible and that he, personally, very much wished it might be possible.

While fully recognizing the difficulties to be met, Mr. Scott Harston does not consider the obstacles insurmountable.

In a most interesting and witty recital of the historical review of events in connection with the Peak Tram, he recalled the various suggestions that have been brought up in the past and the opposition to them by various parties. He smilingly spoke of the days when the Peak Tram was not altogether in favour with the Government, but added that he had no doubt that our present Governor would adopt a perfectly fair attitude towards the Peak Tram proposition, and thought that, with his support, the matter could be taken up with the War Office, although it might take some time, it was quite possible that the desire of the majority of the residents of the Colony would be realized and the Peak Tram extended to the Queen's Road level.

Germany Again Up To 1914 Strength
2,800,000 Could Be Mobilised In Few Weeks.

"Germany has already attained the military strength it had in 1914," declared Marshal Petain, Minister of War, in a statement to the Military Committee of the Chamber.

The Finance Committee of the Chamber subsequently approved the Government's proposals for additional credits of 3000 million francs to extend the national defence plans for land, sea and air.

Marshal Petain said that in addition to the Reichswehr and police there were 500,000 men in Germany trained for an intensive military campaign. In a few weeks Germany would be able to mobilise 2,800,000, highly trained men.

Another remark of the War Minister was: "The reconstruction of German aviation is now finished." In spite of this, however, they heavily increasing their reserves of bombing and pursuit planes.

DOROTHY ROUND'S WIN

Following up her triumph, Dorothy Round, in partnership with R. Miki, Japanese ace, defeated Bunny Austin and Mrs. Sheppard Barron in the Final of the Mixed Doubles by 3-6, 6-4, 6-0.

LAST YEAR'S FINALIST

Dorothy Round, who played in exhibition matches in Hong Kong last November, reached the Final last year when she took a set off Helen Wills-Moody, who had not previously suffered that indignity during six years of competitive tennis. The British girl, who retained her Bournemouth title this year, was badly beaten by Miss Jacobs in this year's Wightman Cup series.

Helen Jacobs, natural American successor to Helen Wills-Moody, reached the Wimbledon Final in 1929 and 1932 only to be beaten in straight sets on both occasions by "Poker Face" Helen.

FULLY CONFIDENT

Miss Jacobs, who served first, led 1-0 at the opening of the match, but the English girl was full of confidence, and made light of her American opponent's heavily chopped drives.

Miss Round served well, and achieved greater speed with her classic driving than she has ever done before. Coolly aiming her winning shots, she often struck the chalk on the baseline, and twice appeared to be favoured with doubtful decisions before winning at 6-2.

In the second set the American girl increased the speed of her chop stroke, and frequently her play produced some very daring angles. The scores went from 2-1, 3-2, to 5-3, but Miss Round then recovered magnificently, and, hitting winners down the sidelines, evened the score at 5-5.

FATAL ERROR

After drawing level with her opponent she slowed down her play, which proved fatal, Miss Jacobs going out at 7-5.

At the opening of the third set Britain's hope led 1-0, and continued to play far better tennis than her rival. She kept up a constant barrage of excellent dropshots, half volleys and drives, always seeking the American's backhand corner. She won the final set after only nine games.

She fully deserved her win, which is the first British victory since 1926, and the first time Britain has secured both the men's and women's titles in the same year since 1909.

MISS RYAN'S RECORD

When Miss Ryan, world's leading woman doubles player, took the court to-day she was making her 26th appearance in a Wimbledon Final, and her triumph represented her 13th victory. The standard of play, however, was not up to the usual standard.

Miss Ryan, who displayed some very fine volleying, was the best player on the court, controlling the situation throughout. It is a notable fact that both pairs in the Final were Franco-American.

HEALTH CAMPAIGN

Better Possibility For Long Life.

MOVEMENT TO CONTINUE FOR ONE WEEK

"It is the aim of every man to live a healthy life for a reasonable spell of years. In the country, he may succeed without assistance but in a populous city he has little chance unless the public health organisation of that city is sound," declared the Hon. Dr. A. R. Wellington, M.R.C.S., in opening the Health Campaign at the Chinese Y.M.C.A., Bridges Street, last evening.

"Where this is the case he has as good a chance of reaching his three score years and ten as he had on the farm," continued Dr. Wellington.

The Health Campaign is sponsored by the Young Men's and Women's Christian Associations, the Chinese Medical Association, and the Y's Men's Club. The Campaign will continue for a week and throughout the week the idea, meaning, and practices of good health will be emphasised through the mediums of lectures, health displays, health literatures, and physical examinations. Efforts are also being made to reach the people residing in the outskirts of Kowloon and the New Territory.

MISS YEUNG GIVES S.C.A.A. GOOD WIN

All the girl swimmers did very well. In Miss Ng Shuen-ying the Chinese Bathing Club have a very promising swimmer, who won places in every women's event and who was the only girl to enter the fancy diving competition, in which she secured third place. She showed remarkable stamina, and with more training she is likely to become one of China's best women swimmers.

Relay Teams

Those who participated in the women's relay race were:—Chinese Bathing Club; the Misses Chan Yuk-fai, Leung Yuk-chun, and Leung Yuk-long, Sum Ching-yuek, Ng Shuen-ying and Chan Fung-king.

South China Athletic Association; the Misses Yeung Sau-king, Yeung Sau-chun, Leung Wing-han, Lau Kwai-chun, Yen Pui-chang, and Yeung Kiu-wah.

The Boy thought O'Regan's nerve had failed him. Nothing looked so assured as those hands on the wheel. Yet...

As they passed a crossing the little black snout of a police car poked from it. It was only a mobile unit, carrying capped sergeant and constable, young and red-checked.

But O'Regan swerved, accelerated. If he'd bluffed—but he didn't. The sudden bark of exhaust raked the streets. He took her straightly, zooming to the third corner...

The Boy, looking back, saw the officers shout to one another, swinging round, follow... and saw the two purposeful faces low behind the windscreen.

The city rocked past. Streets, squares, alleys, crowds scattering... a long limousine skidding... an errand boy riding for his area... sudden, short, vanishing... nothing that was with them except the close walls of the car, the set faces, the engine-throb.

The Boy made for the window. But Scab knew better.

"Keep that—gat down!" he shouted, pulling him back.

The girl was in the middle of the road. She was in the middle of the road as they swung the corner. A little girl, gold-haired, perhaps as old as four. She pulled behind her a red enamelled toy engine, made of wood...

O'Regan did his best. It was one of the risks, he knew... But O'Regan had children of his own.

On his left the road was up, fenced with trestles. He swung his wheel frantically. Too late to save. A mudguard ripped the child, flung her bloodily on to the road. And the car, bouncing from impact, splintered the trestles, nosed smashing into the sewer ditch.

There was one escape.

O'Regan, his face red from blood of glass wounds, leapt into the ditch and ran, leaping pipes, along it—ran head down in the ditch, around the corner. Scab was out... Each man for himself.

All along that street, windows were flung noisily open, doors banged. Shirt-sleeved men, aproned women, came wondering, then came running and resolute...

The Boy was last. He had been hurled forward across the front seat. He heard a clamorous thunder, louder to frightened ears, growing around him—growing as feet and voices came nearer...

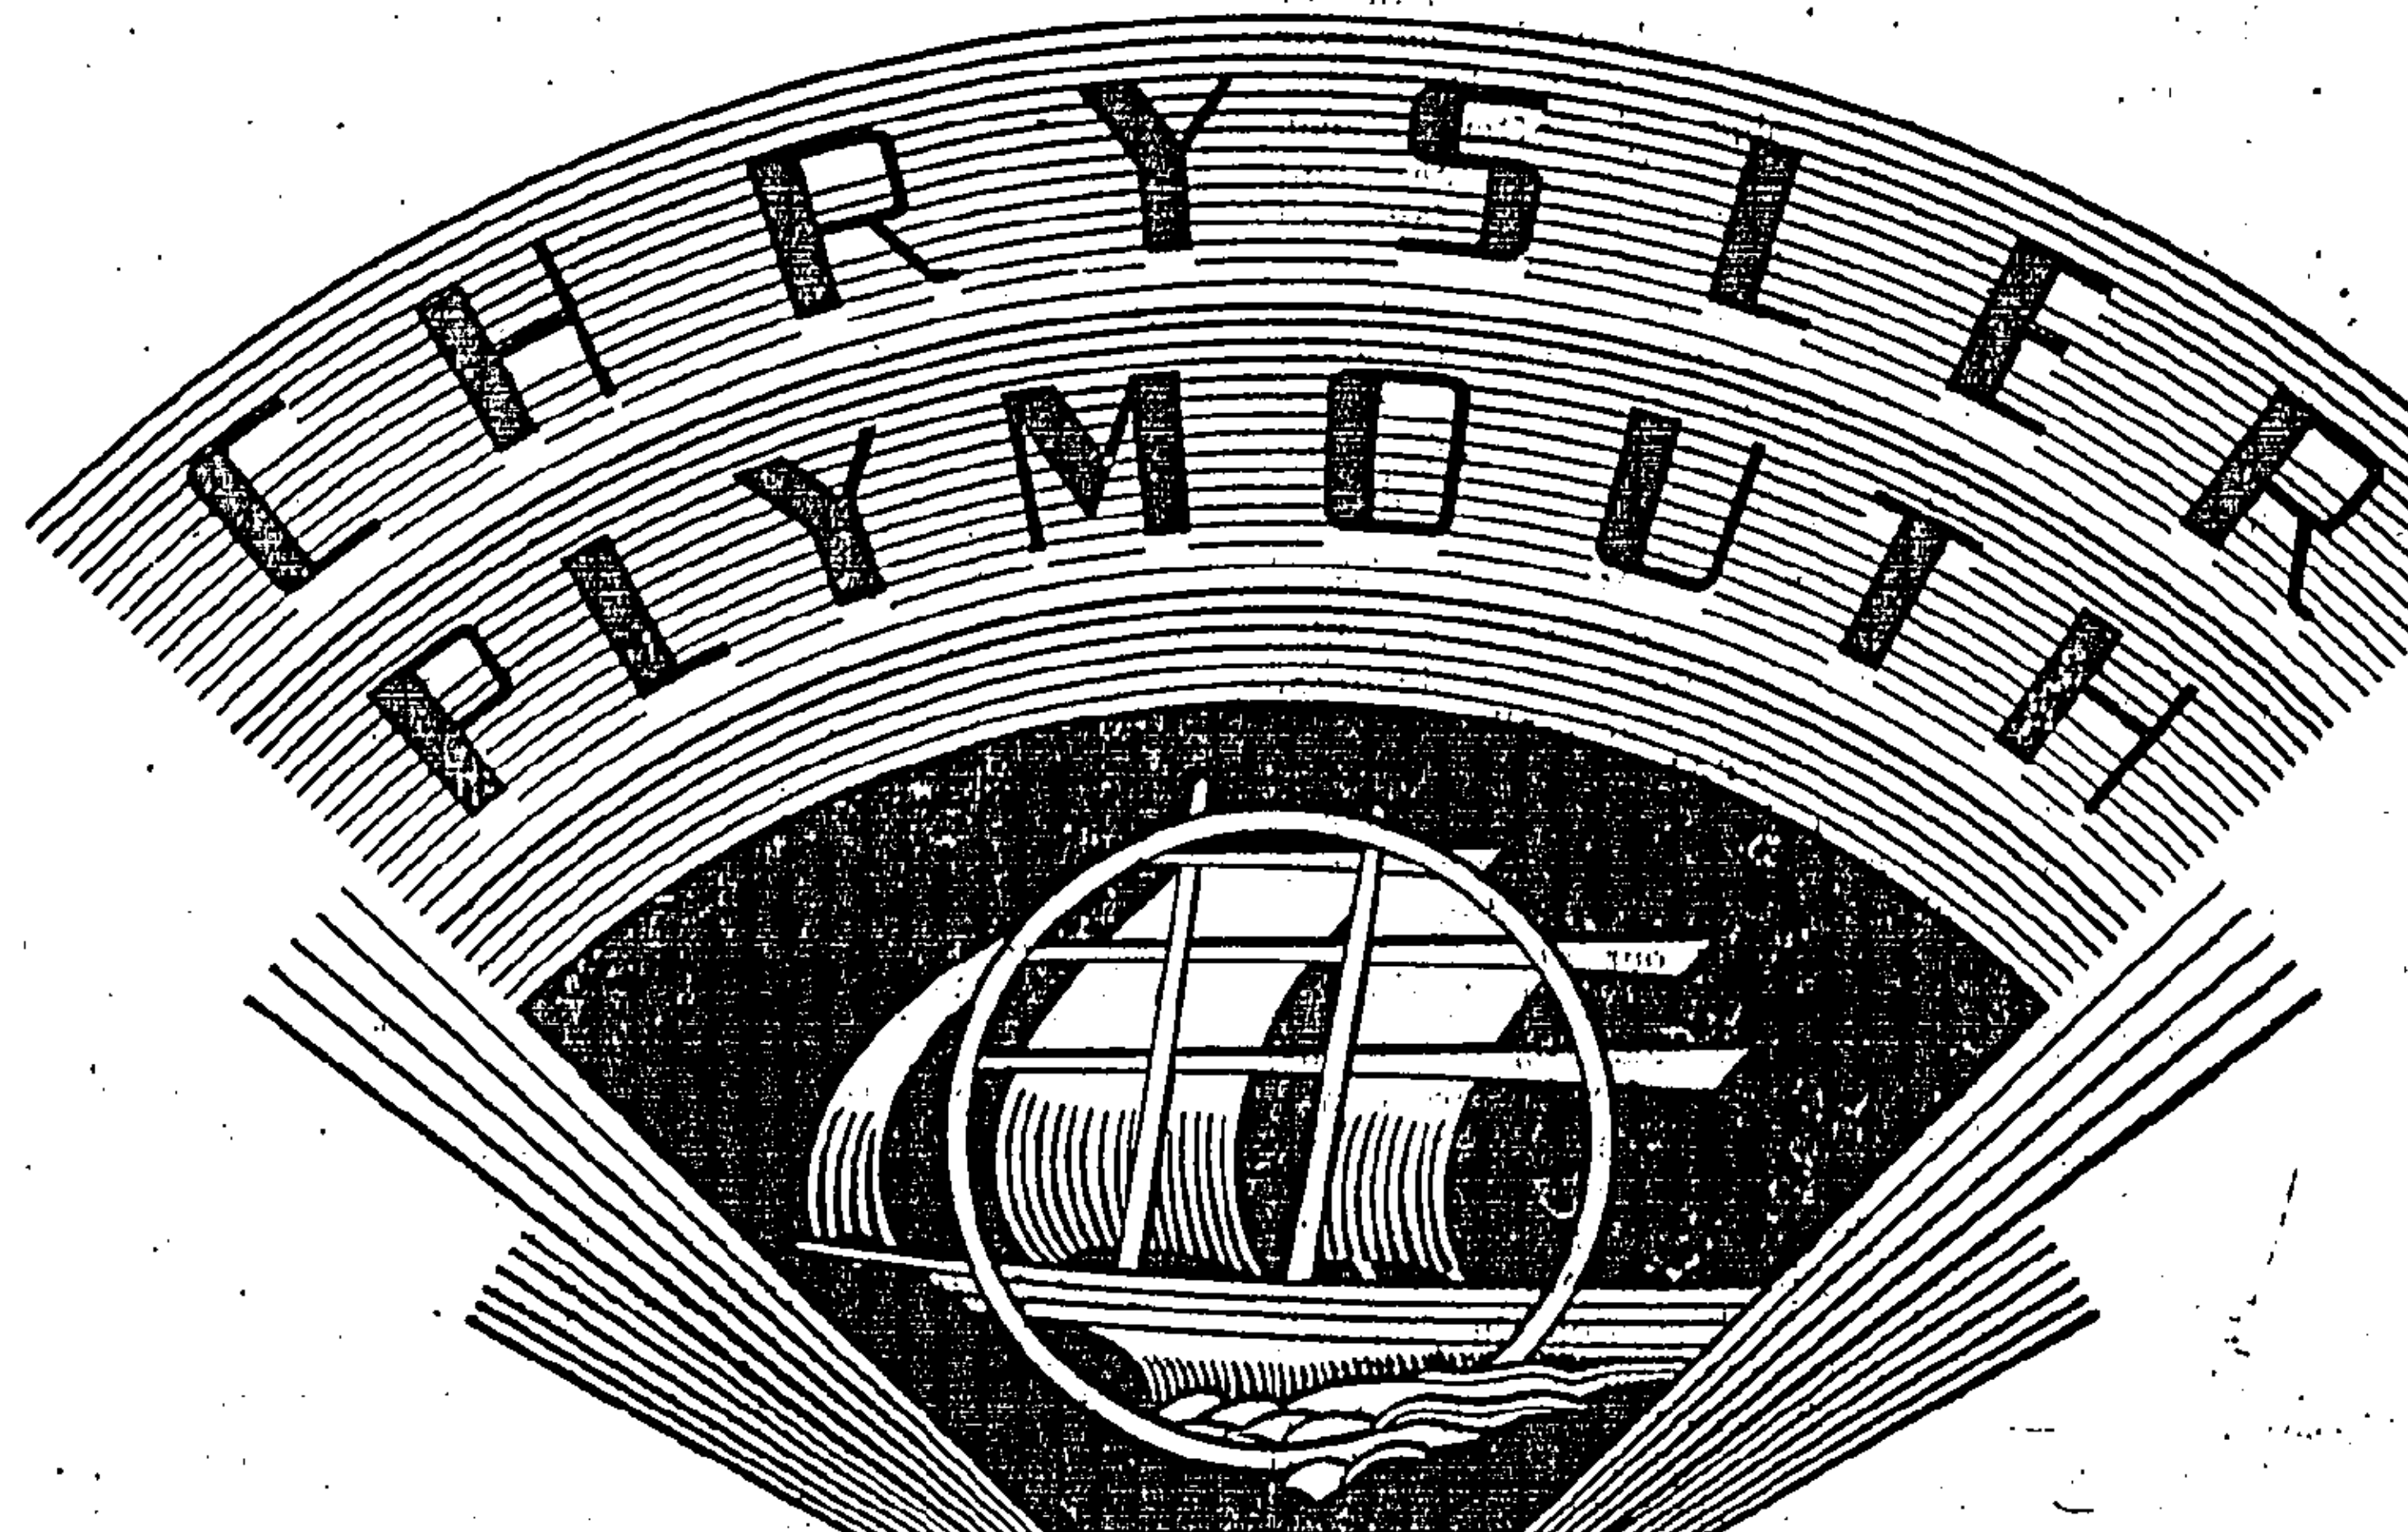

He ran across the street, over the still body of the girl. Her face was a flattened red wound. He did not look at her. He saw an alley, its dark mouth guarded by two hip-high posts, and ran for it... plunged into the close and welcome shadow...

It was a cul-de-sac.

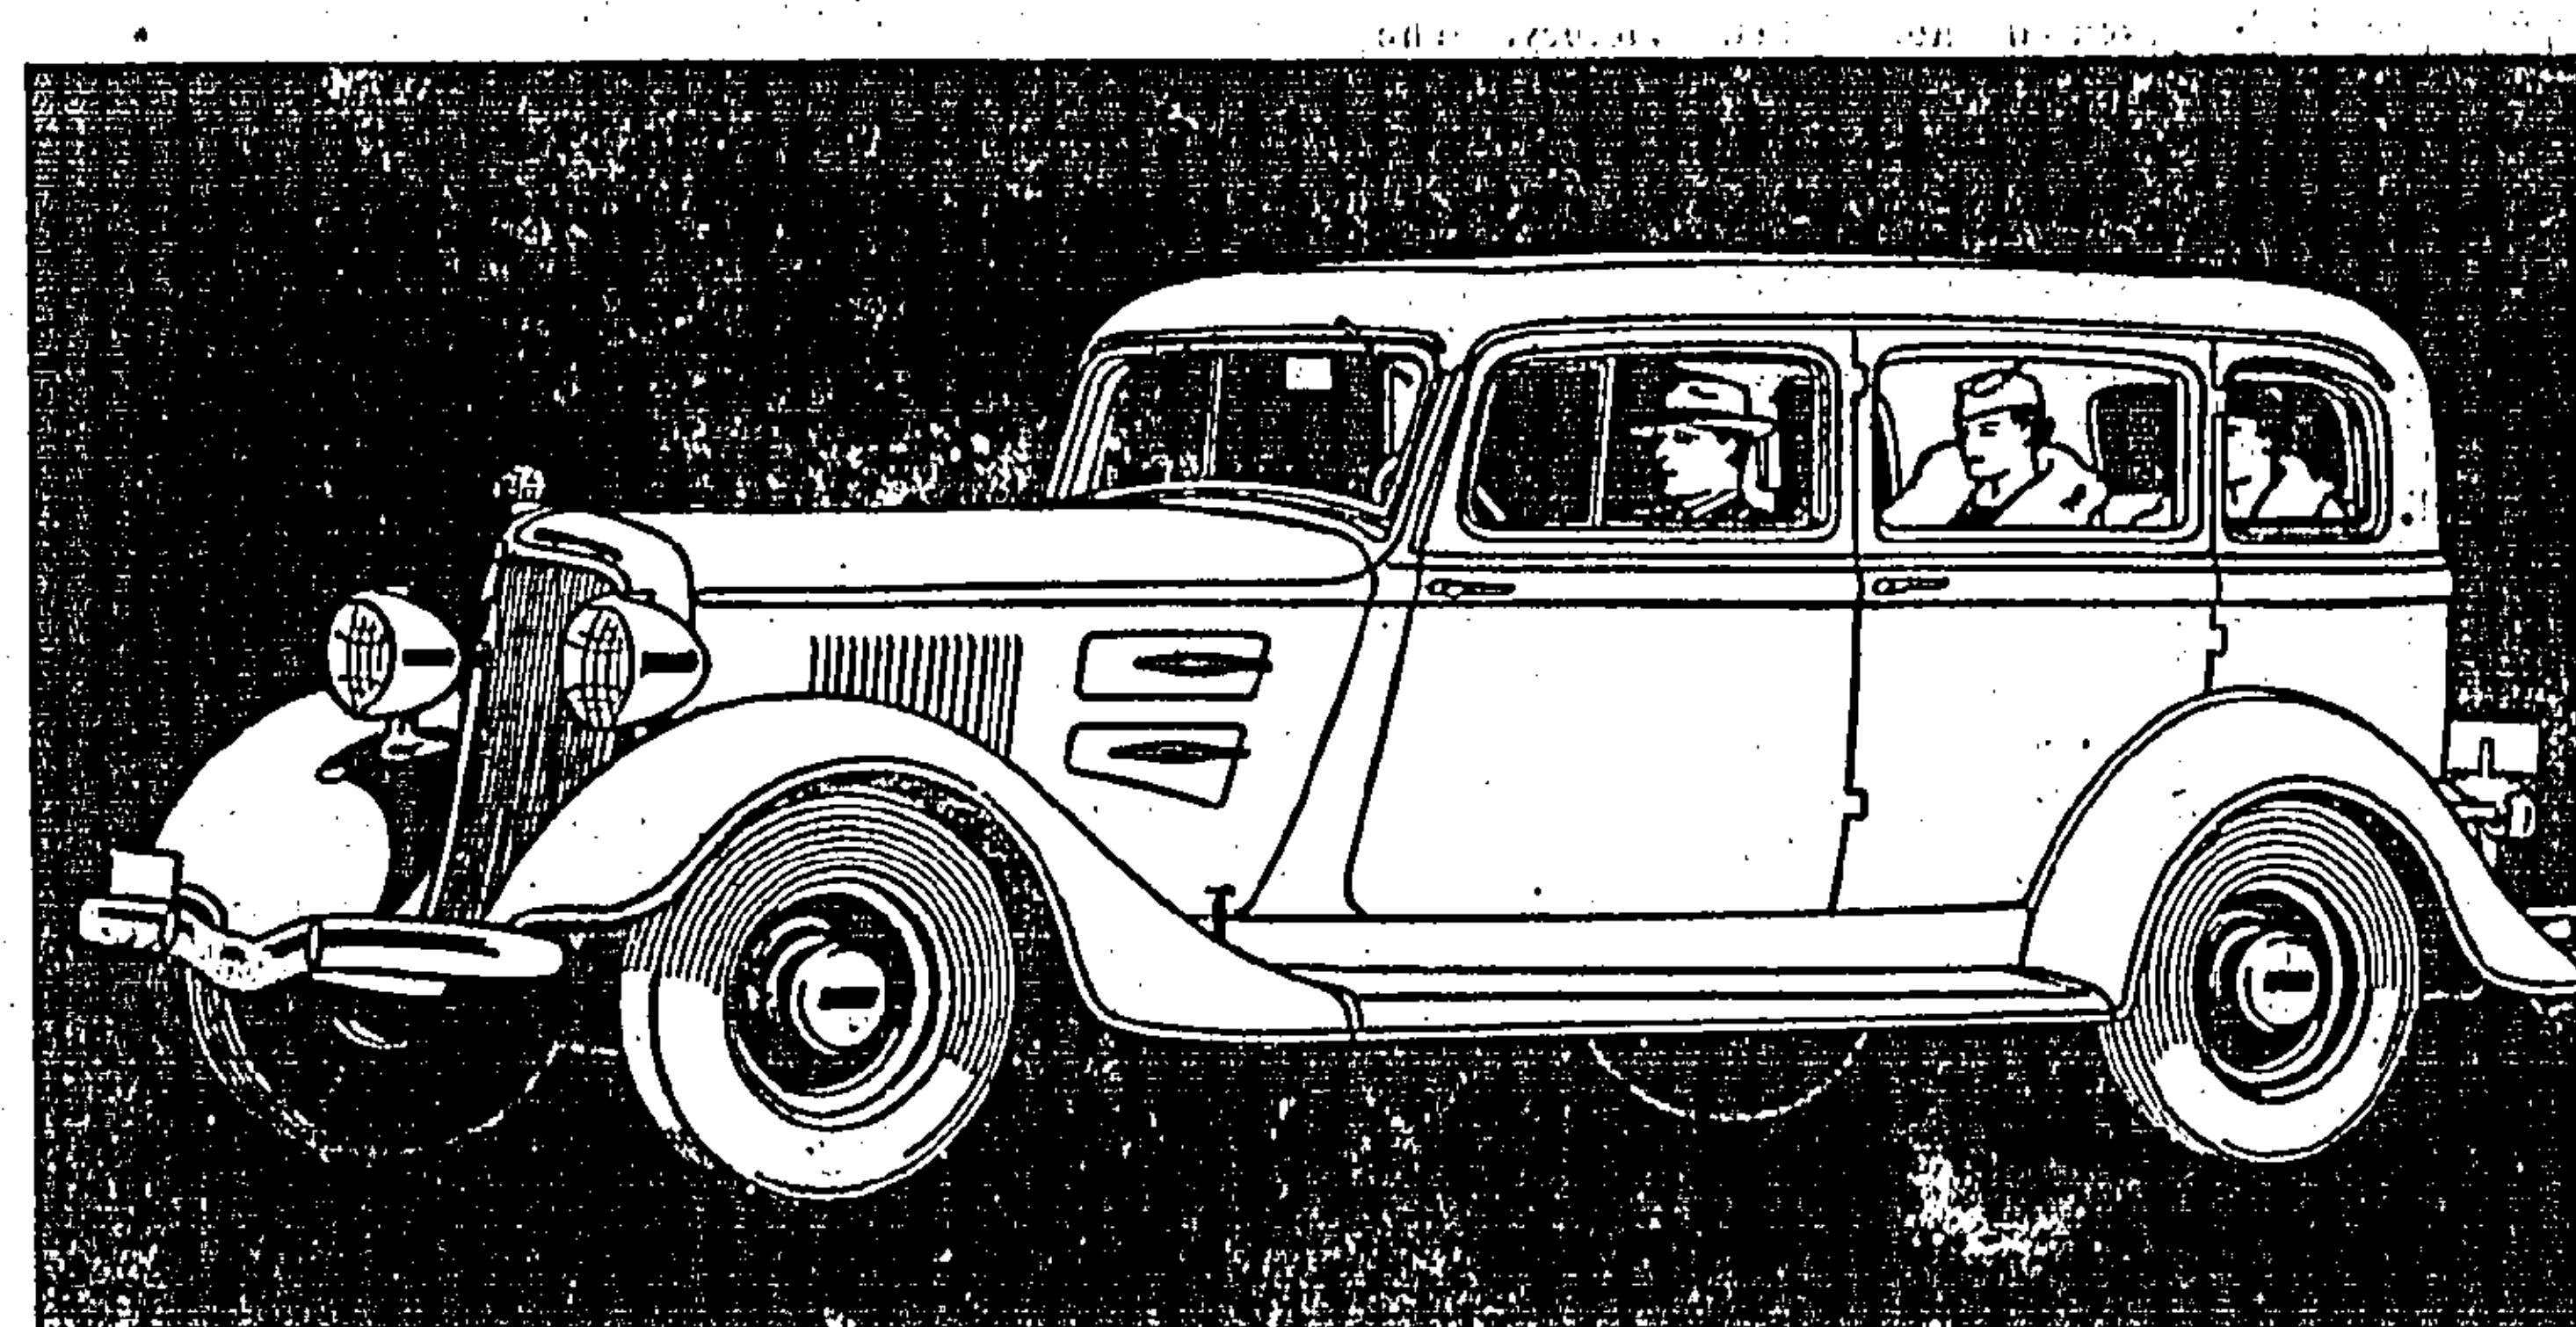

And when he turned from the wall that faced him, half a dozen men had blocked its throat. He hesitated, drew his gun. The men halted; their number grew.

MOTERING NOTES - -

10 P.M. MOTOR HORN CURFEW.

Paris Decree.

Paris.

Motorists have been warned that they must not use their horns or klaxons in Paris after 10 p.m. On approaching cross roads they are expected to switch their headlights on and off several times.

The new order, issued by the Prefect of Paris, aims at increasing the tranquillity of the city after dark.

All For The Riviera

Mass Motor Tour Of The Continent.

Dover was recently invaded by Austin cars from all over the country, each with a complement of happy motorists bound for the Continent on a fortnight's tour through France and the Riviera into Italy, were return via Switzerland.

There were about ninety persons on the tour and by the time the party reached Dover it covered over 2,000 miles through some of the finest Continental scenery, but the carefully planned stages allowed ample opportunities for sight-seeing other diversions en route.

This invasion by Austin owners helped to enlighten the Continent as to the present vigour of the motor movement in Great Britain.

HOW TO TRACK A MISFIRE.

Cool Plug A Sure Indication.

When a six or eight-cylinder engine begins to misfire on one cylinder on the road it is not worth while making an immediate stoppage to trace the faulty sparking plug. Even with a proper testing instrument it may be quite difficult to identify the faulty unit with any rapidity. The correct procedure is to drive on for, say, half a mile, dismount, open the bonnet, and to feel carefully all the sparking plugs.

The plug which has been out of action during the last half-mile will by that time be almost cold—at all events it will be quite perceptibly cooler than those which have been firing properly all the time.—"The Autocar."

PROGRESS OF THE TROLLEY BUS.

England Leads In Development.

In no other country in the world has the progress of the trolley bus been so rapid as it has been in England during the past ten years, says "Motor Transport."

Twenty-two local authorities and six companies now run 747 trolley buses over a route mileage of 279.64 miles. Twenty-seven other local authorities and one company have powers to run trolley buses, and others are seeking them. The London Passenger Transport Board, which already runs thirty trolley buses over a route mileage of 17.24 is seeking additional powers to substitute a large proportion of its tramway system by the more modern form of transport.

EXTRA WORK FOR HAULIERS.

Many hauliers are getting some nasty shocks which they should have been prepared for ages ago, says "Motor Transport." At a meeting in North London recently, members of the audience were surprised to learn that even the owner-driver who makes twenty or more short journeys will have to keep detailed records under the Road-Rail Act. One man said it would mean another two hours' work a day.

WHERE LUCK RULES.

(By LADY RHODES)

Judging from letters and questions, and from conversations overheard, many, if not most, players seem to think that in every situation there is one "correct"
bid, and one only.

This is far from being the case.
Very often there are two or even more possibilities, and the right choice is really a matter of luck.
Here is a typical question:

Score: Love all in the first game. My partner bid One Heart.

I holding

S K 5 H Q 8 7 6

D K J 6 4 C K J 2

raised her to three. She said I should have bid four.

Who was right? The answer is

"Neither" or "Both!" Three Hearts is a good safe bid. Four Hearts, on the other hand, can probably be made if the opener

has no extra value beyond the queen of clubs or diamonds. As in so many of these cases, the decision must be influenced by your partner's game. If she is apt to rebid on the lightest excuse, Three Hearts is enough. But if she is inclined to be cautious, Four

Hearts is a better speculation.

Another question: Both sides vulnerable, score 60 all. As fourth in hand, should I have opened on:

S K Q 9 7 6 H K J 7 6

D K Q 4 C 9

Here, again, there is no definite answer. It all depends. If your partner has a suitable hand, it will pay you to bid. You will either win the rubber or extract

a penalty from the opponents if they try to save it. If, on the other hand, the opponents bid over

you, and they find that their hands fit they will get the rubber or you will incur the penalty.

The same difficulties arise in slam bidding, especially when the 4-5 No Trump convention is not being used. For example, North opens with Two Spades on:

S A K Q 9 4 H A K 8 6 2

D 10 C K Q

South then bids Three Diamonds,

North Three Hearts, South Five

Hearts. Should North bid the little slam? The only answer is that it is a 50-50 gamble. If

South holds the ace of diamonds,

the little slam is there. But, on the bidding, she might have held some such hand as

S 7 6 3 H Q J 10 5

D K Q J 8 4 C 9

and two tricks must be lost. In this particular case I should be influenced by the score. If we were a game up I would not risk the rubber for a doubtful slam. But if we had no score and the opponents were game and 60

or 90, I would try for a slam, hoping for a set-off against the probable loss of the rubber.

It is sometimes difficult, when you have opened with a suit bid of

One, and your partner's response is One No Trump, to know if it is worth while raising her on additional high card strength. You hold, for example:

S A K 7 6 H A 8 4

D 9 6 C K 6 4 2

and your partner bids One No

Trump over your opening spade

bid. Here you should not raise her; her response may have been on as little as a trick; even if she has two tricks. Two No Trumps is a doubtful proposition.

But, if you hold:

S A K 7 3 H A 8 4

D A 6 C J 6 4 2

It is worth while bidding Two No

Trump. The situation is, or should be, clear to your partner.

If her original response was a minimum, she should not bid

again, but she may hold two tricks,

Millions Of Years
To Travel.

If light takes time to travel from the furthest planets, can we say what is the condition of the planets now?

Light travels at over 180,000 miles per second and so would reach the furthest planet before any change could have taken place. It only takes some eight or nine minutes to get to us from the sun.

With the stars, however, it is different, and light does take millions of years to get from some of them.

But they are so far away we can never see their discs, but only their gleam. When, however, they blow up, the flash we see may in some cases have gone off long before Rome was built or civilisation began.

"1900" Churches Condemned By The Pope

Decisive Measures
Being Taken By Vatican.

The Vatican is to take decisive measures according to the "Corris-pondenza" to prevent the danger of religious architecture "degenerating into the extravagances and ugliness of the 1900 period."

Rome already has two churches built in this style, one of which was erected by subscriptions from Roman Catholics throughout the world.

A large number of subscribers, especially foreigners, have protested against what they describe as the irreverent character of one of the churches, in spite of the fact that it was built by an Italian academician.

The 1900 Style

The present outcry has been prompted by the fact that in a recent competition for designs for 300 churches to be built in regions devastated by earthquake shocks all the plans submitted were conceived in the 1900 style.

There is a campaign to declare the competition null and void.

The Pope has made it clear that he will not contribute to anything in aid of architectural monstrosities.

They halted, ten yards away. A pack of hounds. A steady ferocity was on their faces. They had seen the girl, lying in the road. They knew her. The widow's daughter, from the greengrocer's shop. A smashed car. A running man, cornered, with a gun.

The Boy's mind reeled in a sudden flooding of panic. He levelled his gun, and the crowd, suddenly quiet and watchful, broke a little.

Then—he never saw its flight—
a bottle smashed on the wall behind his head. And before he knew what sudden clatter had been, a brick came, flung by a strong hand...tiles, paving stones, sticks, stones, boots, cases...Then the foremost men shouted, and ran forward, hot with their anger.

But the Boy lay, spreadeagled, his temples to the sky, and the blood of him from them on to the pavement, and steamed a little as it lost its warmth.

The police car, Scab sitting in it, wristed with steel, swung the corner and pulled up, brakes screaming.

SHORTAGE OF REMUNERATIVE INVESTMENT

DIFFICULTY FOR BRITISH BANKS.

DIVIDENDS MAINTAINED

London, Yesterday.

Although all the leading British joint stock banks have maintained their interim dividend rates, greater difficulty has been experienced in the last half year in finding remunerative investment for their funds, respite a reduction in the volume of deposits and a larger turnover in current accounts.

Admittedly, discount rates, and Treasury Bills have been well above the first half of 1933, but, on the other hand, by reason of a considerable reduction in the available supply of such bills due to the Government's funding operations, it has been impossible to employ the same volume of money as formerly in this direction, particularly as no expansion was shown in trade bills.

For the same reason it was necessary to maintain a high proportion of cash which was not remunerative. Money at call on short notice alone has been more freely employable, mainly due to greater activity on the stock exchanges. — Reuter.

OIL SEARCH IN BRITAIN

Petroleum Bill.

London, Yesterday.

The House of Commons yesterday passed the third reading of the Petroleum Production Bill, which has already been passed in the House of Lords.

The measure facilitates the search for oil in the British Isles and provides State ownership for any oil found. — Reuter.

STEWARDS' CUP

Pembroke College, Cambridge, won the Stewards' Cup when they beat the London Rowing Club "A", who failed to finish owing to the fact that one of their oarsmen caught a crab and the boat hit the booms. The winners' time was 7 mins. 24 secs., which was 12 secs. better than the record established in 1925.

The Leander Club, who broke the course record in the heats, beat the Princeton University crew for custody of the Grand Challenge Cup, winning by threequarters of a length in 6 mins. 45 secs.

CAMBRIDGE WIN

First Trinity College, Cambridge, beat University College, Oxford, by two-thirds of a length in 7 minutes 38 seconds to win the Visitors' Cup. The Thames Rowing Club "B" team beat the London Rowing Club "B" by a third of a length in 7 minutes 4 seconds to win the Thames Cup.

In the race for the Wyfold Cup, the Reading Rowing Club beat the Royal Chester Rowing Club by 1 1/2 lengths in 7 minutes 38 seconds. — Reuter.

Follow Up.

TOE NOT ENCOURAGING

The following New York market cables were received last night through the American Oriental Finance Corporation: — Stocks: Yesterday's rally did not bring any increase in volume and is therefore not very encouraging, but the absence of offerings suggests concentrated buying which would cause a sharp rally should new buying come into the market. Cotton: The trade and the Far East took most of the sales on limit orders. The sales were by long operators.

England 627 For 1 Declared

Runs, however, came steadily and it was not until 482 were on the board that the Yorkshire left-hander attempted to drive a ball from O'Reilly, failed to connect properly, and was caught by Barnett for 153, his second successive Test century.

Having taken part in stands of 191, with Hendren for the fifth wicket, and 142 with Ames for the sixth wicket, Leyland hit a five and nineteen—boundaries—in his 153, scored out of 333 in 310 minutes.

SUCCESSIVE HUNDREDS

He gave a glorious display of off-driving and was given a great ovation when he returned to the pavilion. In the second Test at Lord's he scored 109, being associated in a sixth wicket stand with Ames that produced 129 runs.

Encouraged by their success the Australians showed great keenness in the field. Hopwood, the Lancashire left-hander, however, did not cause any anxiety in his Test debut, having his wicket broken as the result of playing a cross bat to O'Reilly. 492-7-2.

Leslie Ames looked set for his second successive Test century when he attempted a powerful pull off Grimmett and was well caught by Ponsford at wide mid on. 510-8-72.

Ames, who was very restrained last night scored freely all-round the wicket this morning. He batted 150 minutes for his 72, scored out of 170, and hit ten boundaries. He scored 120 in the last Test.

WALL DROPS ALLEN

Allen was fortunate to be dropped early in his innings by Wall off a skler. O'Reilly, who was the unfortunate bowler, had then the following figures:—

O. M. R. W.
43 7 143 7

The Australians were given no further chances, lunch being taken with the score at 533 for 8, Allen being 22 and Hendley Verity 9. Thus in two hours play England had added 178 runs for the loss of three wickets.

England's total is the highest recorded in a Test match at Old Trafford, beating the 1905 record of 446.

95 FOR NINTH WICKET

Allen and Verity offered a bold front to the tired Australian bowlers and consolidated England's strong position by adding 72 runs after lunch before a ball from McCabe nipped through to

TEXTILE QUOTA IMPOSITION

3d. Per Yard Preference
For Britain.

SUFFICIENT IN CEYLON

London, Yesterday.

In reference to the difference between the British and Ceylonese Governments regarding the imposition in Ceylon of the anti-Japanese textile quotas, it is learned that the suggestion for a tariff of sevenpence per lb. on Japanese textiles is erroneous.

Experts consider that a specific preference of threepence per yard on British exports is required to achieve the same end as the quota.

The British Government have refused to give assurances for preferences on certain Ceylonese products. The Ceylonese Government are continuing negotiations.

Meanwhile, it is understood that the Ceylonese counter-proposals are unsatisfactory because they do not provide a sufficiently large tariff as a substitute for the quota. British experts were said to consider that a tariff of at least sevenpence per lb. on Japanese textiles was necessary. — Reuter.

The question of connecting the Canton-Kowloon line with the Canton-Hankow line has not been, and will not be, raised at the negotiations regarding the revision of the Canton-Kowloon through traffic agreement. — Reuter.

LEG-THEORY RETORT

It was announced by Reuter on Thursday that it had been learned on good authority that as a sequel to Lancashire's objections to leg-theory bowling, the cricket fixtures between Lancashire and Nottingham, which have existed for 60 years, would be discontinued next year.

man and Chipperfield early this morning and announced that neither would be able to play to-day. Bradman's temperature was slightly above normal, and he appears worse than Chipperfield who hopes to get up this afternoon.

Precautionary methods are considered most successful regarding Woodfull, Ponsford and Brown, who are playing to-day. — Reuter.

Curiously enough several Wimbledon competitors suffered from the same malady on the second day of the tournament, G. Von Cramm, the German champion, being afflicted when he lost to J. V. Kirby, South Africa's leading player.
